BRITISH SOLDIERS NOW HOLD BAGDAD

General Maude's Army Writes New Chapter to One Thousand and One Nights—War Office Has Not Consummation of Campaign.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
London, March 10.—Rumors that Baghdad has fallen into the hands of the British were in general circulation in military circles today but early this forenoon the war office had given out no confirmation.

The Daily Chronicle, without revealing the source of its information, declared it was "virtually certain" that British troops are now in Baghdad and that official confirmation may be expected at any moment.

"One was occupied without any serious fighting and we shall probably learn that our cavalry dashed through it and along the Tigris toward Samarra," added the Chronicle. Reports that the ancient city of the Arabian Nights tales had been occupied by General Maude's victorious army stirred London as has no other event since the German-American war. The capture of Baghdad, it was pointed out here, ends Germany's dream of a great empire in the East and is the most severe blow Turkish political influence has suffered in Asia in many decades.

The last official dispatches from General Maude made public at the war office had placed British cavalry detachments between 12 and 14 miles from Baghdad and pressing steadily forward in pursuit of the fleeing Turks. It was reported yesterday that the Ottoman forces were massing for a defense of the city and the war office authorized the statement that the Turks probably would make a stand at the Diahla river, six miles from the outskirts. The war office pointed out that if the Turks were driven from this position they probably would evacuate Baghdad without a fight.

The latest official statement from Constantinople reported the British approach on Baghdad and apparently was issued to prepare the Turkish people for the city's surrender.

General Maude's advance on Baghdad actually began only a few weeks ago, though he had been engaged with the Turks around Kut-el-Amara for several months. The British began their first campaign against Baghdad immediately upon declaration of war with Turkey and within 17 days had captured Basra, 50 miles from the mouth of the Tigris. On September 29, 1915, a British force occupied Kut-el-Amara, 120 miles from Baghdad, and pressed on toward the city. After occupying Ctesiphon, only 18 miles from Baghdad, General Townshend's forces were defeated and driven back in flight to Kut-el-Amara. A force of ten thousand men left to garrison Kut was surrounded and captured by the Turks.

Weather conditions and the necessity of filling up the ranks of the Indian troops in the Mesopotamian campaign delayed the new British campaign for several months. After General Maude occupied Kut-el-Amara he encountered but little resistance, principally because of the defection of many Arabian tribesmen who had been fighting with the Turks, and pressed steadily up the Tigris.

Bagdad was founded by the Caliph Abou Glafar al-Mansur about 762 A. D. and named by him Medinet-es-Salam, meaning "City of Salvation." The name Bagdad is said to have been derived from the name of a popular Muslim dervish.

For five centuries Bagdad was the brilliant capital of the Arabian Empire. Under Caliph Haroun-al-Raschid, Bagdad ruled an empire that included all lands from India to Gibraltar and became a center of learning and civilization. But the Arabian Empire fell into decay, Bagdad was sacked by the Mongolians in 1262, and later fell successively into the hands of the Turks and Persians, finally becoming a part of the Turkish Empire in 1638.

The city itself is famous for its picturesque streets, famous mosques and minarets and remains of ancient Arabian architecture. Before the war it enjoyed a prosperous trade. The extension of the Constantinople-Bagdad railway, financed by German capital, to the Persian Gulf, which was under way when war was declared, would have made Bagdad one of the most prosperous cities of the East.

Storm King Road in 1918.
That the Storm King scenic highway will be completed during 1918 was predicted by State Highway Commissioner Edwin Duffey in a speech with which he formally opened the second annual automobile show in the Newburgh state armory Thursday night. The large exhibit of automobiles is said to surpass that of last year.

War Sermon.
At the evening service to be held in German in the Spring Street German Lutheran Church tomorrow night, the Rev. A. Schmidt-Konz will deliver his eighth war sermon. The subject will be, "Fear Not!"

TONY DENIER DEAD FROM INJURIES

Famous Clown Died This Morning in Kingston City Hospital Following Injuries Received From a Fall.

Anthony Denier, better known for half a century to American playgoers as "Tony" Denier, the original Humpty Dumpty clown, died at five o'clock this morning at the Kingston City Hospital, where he has been confined since March first, when he fell on an icy sidewalk near the City Home, of which he has been an inmate since last June.

Tony was fond of walking and after he became an inmate of the City Home he took long walks almost daily, no matter what the weather might be. It was while taking one of his usual walks that he fell on the ice and broke his arm. He was removed to the hospital, where his condition became serious, and his ultimate recovery became doubtful.

Tony was seventy-eight years old. For more than forty years he followed the theatrical profession, and he probably amused more amusement-seekers than any other man in America. Years ago he originated the Humpty Dumpty act and was known throughout the theatrical world as the Humpty Dumpty clown. He traveled throughout the entire United States and also the West Indies, where he played before big audiences.

When he became seventy years old, Tony retired from the stage. He had led an active life for forty years and had accumulated a competence which he believed would keep him for the remainder of his life. He bought some property in Chicago and decided to spend his remaining days there.

In 1910, Daniel Sully, the well-known actor and playwright of Woodstock, died, and in the months following there was considerable correspondence between his widow, Mrs. Louise Sully, and Tony, who had been a close personal friend of both Mr. and Mrs. Sully. In the recent trial of the suit brought by Tony against Mrs. Denier, it developed that Tony came to Woodstock to visit Mrs. Sully and married her after a two days' courtship. According to Mrs. Sully, Tony often had called her his "little girl," and had said that he had waited for years to become her husband.

After the marriage, which occurred in the fall of 1910, Mr. and Mrs. Denier went to Chicago, where they remained part of winter. He disposed of his real estate in Chicago and returned to Woodstock after his business there was closed.

Several years ago Tony and his wife had a serious disagreement and Tony came to Kingston to live. He boarded at the hotel kept by the late Patrick Roman, and when his money was exhausted he continued to live at the hotel upon the bounty of Mr. Roman. After Mr. Roman's death, which occurred about a year ago, Tony removed to the City Home.

Soon after his separation from Mrs. Denier, Tony brought an action against her to compel the execution of a mortgage covering her real estate which he claimed she had promised to execute as a condition to his advancing $17,000 to her. On the trial of the case, which took place before Judge Hasbrouck recently, Mrs. Denier testified that the money was not advanced to her as a loan but as a gift, and that Tony had made the gift of his fortune in return for her promise to become his wife.

In his opinion in the case, which was handed down in February, Judge Hasbrouck stated that he disregarded the testimony of the promise of a mortgage as testified to by Tony, and also the testimony of Mrs. Denier that the money was a gift in consideration of her promise to marry, but that he found Tony was entitled to the money at least $3,222. Mrs. Denier filed a notice of appeal to the Appellate Division from the judgment entered on Judge Hasbrouck's decision and order, but it is understood that a settlement was made within the past two weeks at a reduction from the amount which Tony would have recovered if the judgment had been sustained by the Appellate Division. In his suit against his wife, Tony was represented by William H. Gray, who had befriended him in many ways since he came to Kingston, and by former City Judge N. Frank O'Reilly.

Tony testified in his suit that he had no family and no near relatives. It is understood that it was his wish to be buried in Chicago. Funeral arrangements have not yet been made.

VATICAN ACTIVE ON PEACE PLAN?

Presence of British and Spanish Ambassadors at the Holy See Believed to Have Bearing on New Move to End Hostilities.

(By Camillo Cianfarra.)

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Rome, Feb. 16.—(By Mail)—Since the rupture of diplomatic relations between the United States and Germany, the Vatican State Chancery has been the scene of unusual diplomatic activity. For nearly two weeks Cardinal Gasparri, secretary of state, and his able assistant, M. Tedeschi, have steadily denied themselves to all callers who visit the state chancery in search of news of the war. Their seclusion and the work imposed upon the small staff of prelates to whom the secrets of Vatican diplomacy are entrusted, are the object of endless comment, both in the Vatican and lay circles of the Italian capital.

This unusual activity of the Vatican Chancery coincides with the circulation of a report that the Pope is on the eve of making another step for the prompt cessation of hostilities. Though nothing is known of the nature of the new move, Vatican circles regard as extremely significant the fact that during the last few days the British and Spanish ambassadors to the Holy See, have been frequent callers at the state chancery. They were invariably escorted through the third lodge to the Pope's private working room, where long conferences were held.

The same report adds that since President Wilson's peace efforts were nullified by Germany's announcement of a ruthless submarine war, the Pope, though sadly disappointed, resumed the work of peace, which he had, in a measure, abandoned while President Wilson was making his appeal. The Pope is said to believe that he has some reason for hoping for success this time because he has the hearty co-operation of Queen Victoria of Spain, an English princess, and Empress Zita of Austria.

According to one prelate, official information in possession of the Vatican State Chancery points to the fact that England has been and still is the only stumbling block in the way of peace. France, though determined to resist to her last man, and her last penny, is not altogether opposed to meeting delegates of her enemy. She has nothing to fear—neither the loss of more territory nor of any part of her colonial empire. The defense of Verdun has, in a measure, rehabilitated her military reputation, so badly shattered by the war of 1870-71.

England, however, remains obstinate and is determined to spurn any offer of peace or mediation until her armies have conquered on the battlefields, or her navy on the seas, all the laurels she deems indispensable to a perpetuation, if not to an increase, of her prestige in the world. Count de Salis, the British ambassador to the Holy See, is said to have informed the Pope that England would not encourage any attempt at mediation until after her effort by her armies in France.

OLD MAP OF SHAWANGUNK.

Blue Print Made from Johannes Bruyn's Work of 1798.

We are indebted to Mr. Frank D. Low, deputy superintendent of public buildings at Albany, for a blue print of Map No. 2 in the state engineer's office, says the New Palitz Independent. This is a map of the town of Shawangunk made in 1798 by Johannes Bruyn and certified by Joseph L. Hasbrouck, supervisor. This map bears about the same date as the one of Marlborough and Plattekil given by C. M. Woolley in his History of Marlborough. We wish a map of New Palitz as old as these could be found, for probably they were made of other towns beside New Marlborough and Shawangunk. This map shows the roads, the Old Shawangunk church and the New Hurley church, the location of mills and taverns; also the residences of a number of citizens, but we are not sure whether these comprise all the residences in the town, or only those of the most prominent citizens. This map should certainly be framed and placed in the Memorial House.

Plans on Exhibition at Water Board Office.

The plans and specifications for the proposed two-story stone addition to the filter house at Zena of the water works department are now on exhibition at the water board office for the convenience of contractors. The bids for the construction of the addition will be opened at a special meeting of the water board on March 22 at 3 o'clock.

ACT IN HARMONY AS TO TERMINALS

Chambers of Commerce of Hudson Valley Favor that Course at Conference of Secretaries—Advertising Solicitation and Other Problems.

Secretaries of Chambers of Commerce of the Hudson valley held a conference Friday at Poughkeepsie, at which matters of importance were considered. First among these was the matter of barge canal terminals, the sentiment being in favor of the Walton bill providing for Kingston, Newburgh, Poughkeepsie and Yonkers, similar legislation to follow for the smaller communities once the initial project is under way. Mayor Palmer Canfield, President Sherck of the Poughkeepsie Chamber, and President McCoy of Peekskill are members of the Hudson Valley Chamber committed on this subject.

The need for Chamber of Commerce approval upon every scheme for soliciting advertising among merchants was shown, such a system being in effective operation in many cities of the state. It may be given a trial here. The O. K. of Chamber officers is required on any proposal for program and street advertising before members will listen to it.

Approval of keeping the Hudson Valley organization intact was also unanimously voiced by secretaries and other officials present. Co-operation with the state body will follow but no merger will be attempted. The state conference is set for Rome next Friday and Saturday and many of the Chambers will send delegates. Cities of the Hudson valley are co-operating with complete harmony to judge from the sentiments expressed at the conference. Following the morning session, dinner was served in the private dining room at the Nelson House, where the afternoon session was held. Secretary James E. Canfield was in attendance from Kingston.

BUFFALO DOES NOT SLIDE ANY MORE

In reply to an inquiry made by Cornelius Hume, president of the Kingston National Bank, in regard to so-called counterfeiters of the Buffalo nickel, a sample of which was submitted for examination, Mr. Hume today received from officers of the Irving National Bank of New York city a letter which states:

"I beg to advise that the Buffalo nickel returned herein is genuine. Our own experts rendered a decision in its favor, but I submitted it also to the sub-treasury. They tell me it is one of the first issues. Some criticism having been made particularly with respect to the Buffalo, who is apparently sliding off his pedestal, caused them to make a new design, which accounts for the differences in the two issues."

ODD FELLOWS BIG PINOCHLE LEAGUE

Clay Lodge Still in Lead With Kosciusko Lodge in Second Place—All Working Hard—League Closes March 28.

The pinochle experts of C. S. Clay Lodge are leading the pinochle league of the local Odd Fellow Lodges of the city, having won 36 and lost 27 games. Captain Jacob Port claims his men have only just begun to play and that Clay Lodge will continue to breeze in ahead of the other Odd Fellows and will be the ones who will be tendered a dinner when the league closes March 28.

This opinion is not shared by Captain Ray Whitbeck of Kosciusko Lodge who points to the fact that Clay Lodge has only 9 more games to play while his fellow players have 15 games to play and believe when they have played all the games that they will flash into the lead.

But here again Captain David Bush points with pride to the work of his fellow players of Aretas Lodge and calls attention to the fact that his team has 18 more games to play, and with secret practice in progress and some new wrinkles up their sleeves—not cards be it understood—but plans to gather in the necessary game, that Aretas Lodge will win the championship this year.

That may be so, according to Judge Henry E. McKenzie, captain of the Port Ewen Lodge, but his players have just 18 games more to play and just watch their smoke even if the Port Ewen bridge is not built yet.

THE TALE OF A STOLEN OVERCOAT

Harvey Delamater Applied for Job at Eagle Hotel, and Left With the Coat—His Arrest Leads to Police Asking Explanation from Julius Alcon.

Harvey Delamater, who has been arrested numerous times on the old familiar charge of public intoxication, is now cast for another part in the drama of life and was arrested Friday evening by Policeman Healey on a charge of stealing an overcoat from the Eagle Hotel shortly after supper that evening. This morning Recorder Lang held the case open until Monday morning to give the drummer whose coat was stolen a chance to lodge a complaint against Mr. Delamater.

According to the tale as related on the police blotter a telephone communication was received by Sergeant Phinney from the Eagle Hotel that evening telling that a coat had been stolen from a guest and that Mr. Delamater was suspected of being the thief. It seems that Harvey had applied at the hotel for a job and left later with the overcoat. Sergeant Phinney sent out a general alarm and every officer was notified to keep an eye out for Harvey. Officer Healey was the fortunate man to pick Harvey up and take him to police headquarters where, after an examination, Harvey is said to have confessed to stealing the coat.

Harvey's confession is said to have brought out the statement that he had sold the coat to Julius Alcon on the Strand for $1.30. This led Sergeant Phinney to notify Mr. Alcon to visit Recorder Lang this morning and explain his side of the story.

It might be added that the police also recovered the overcoat which is worth many times $1.30. It is the property of Daniel Hurley, a stanch and company drummer, who was unable to be in court today as he was in Phenicia on business. Mr. Alcon who was in court was notified to appear again on Monday morning and Harvey was placed under $200 bail for his appearance in court at the same time.

HARVEY HAD A CHICKEN WITH HIM

Itinerant Umbrella Mender was Very Drunk and the Chicken was a Pet Bantam Hen He Carried Under One Arm.

While Policeman Shader was patrolling his beat on central Broadway on Friday evening he was somewhat startled to observe Joe Harvey, an itinerant umbrella mender staggering down the street with his umbrella kit thrown over one shoulder and hugging a chicken to his breast. The chicken in this case was a pet bantam hen which Joe explained someone had given him. Joe and the chicken were escorted to police headquarters and while Joe reposed in a cell the chicken was turned over to Billy Scott to care for.

This morning Mr. Harvey was somewhat more sober than the night before and explained that the hen had been given him by Joe Gill, who resides on the corner of East Pierpont and Chambers streets. He was positive he had not stolen the hen, which was later claimed by young Gill and taken back home. The only charge lodged against Mr. Harvey was public intoxication and no complaint was made regarding the chicken and therefore Joe's story of how he came to have the hen with him stands unchallenged.

Recorder Lang, after hearing Joe's story, decided that ten days in the county jail would give Joe a chance to recuperate and accordingly sentenced him to the county hotel for the time stated. Mr. Harvey is a frequent lodger at the city hall but as far as known has never been arrested before.

ADRIATIC REPORTED OFF NEW YORK

By Telegram to The Freeman.
New York, March 10.—The White Star liner Adriatic, from Liverpool, is off the New York harbor, wireless reports from the vessel said today. She will reach Quarantine some time during the day.

Two freighters arrived here today from the war zone. They were the Vestra, a British vessel, and the Bestrum, of Norwegian registry.

The Carmania of the Cunard service is the only large ship scheduled to leave here today for the "barred zone." Among her passengers will be Col. Herbert A. Bruce, former inspector-general of the Canadian overseas medical corps, who is going abroad to assume a post in France.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

By Telegram to The Freeman.

New York, March 10.—The news of the action of the president in calling an extra session, and the announcement of the determination of the policy of the administration to arm American ships was responded to with vigorous buying all through the list at the opening of the stock exchange today. The shipping shares were among the most prominent features, Marine Common advancing 1 1/4 to 29 1/2, the preferred 2 1/4 to 78 and Atlantic Gulf and West Indies 2 1/4 to 110 1/4. Steel Common was traded in on a large scale, and rose 1/4 to 113, and many of the minor steel industrials made material advances. American Steel Foundries rose 3/4 to 64 1/4. Sloss-Sheffield a point to 67, and fractional gains were made in Baldwin Locomotive, and Republic Iron and Steel. American Smelting continued its upward movement, advancing 1/4 to 107 1/4. All the copper shares were active and strong, Anaconda advancing 1/4 to 86 1/4.

The market closed strong. Under realizing many stocks which had made substantial gains in the first hour reacted from one to two points, but these reactions did not alter the general market tone. Steel Common after selling at 113 1/4, reacted to 113, and Marine Pfd. sold down from 78 to below 77. Utah Copper declined over a point. Government bonds unchanged; railway and other bonds firm.

BRITISH SOLDIERS NOW HOLD BAGDAD

General Maude's Army Writes Now Chapter to One Thousand and One Night—War Office Has Not Confirmed Consumption of Cannon.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
London, March 10.—Rumors that Bagdad had fallen into the hands of the British were in general circulation in military circles today but early this forenoon the war office had given out no confirmation.

The Daily Chronicle, without revealing the source of its information, declared it was "virtually certain" that British troops are now in Bagdad and that official confirmation may be expected at any moment.

"One is entitled to assume that the city was occupied without any serious fighting and we shall probably learn that our cavalry dashed through it and along the Tigris toward Bagdad," added the Chronicle. Reports that the ancient city of the Arabian Nights tales had been occupied by General Maude's victorious army since London as has no other about since the German-American break. The capture of Bagdad, it was pointed out here, ends Germany's dream of a great empire in the east and is the most severe blow to Turkish political influence has suffered in 4500 years.

The last official dispatches from General Maude made public at the war office had placed British cavalry detachments between 12 and 14 miles from Bagdad and pressing steadily forward in pursuit of the fleeing Turks. It was reported yesterday that the Ottoman forces were massing for a defense of the city and the war office authorized the statement that the Turks probably would make a stand at the Diah river, six miles from the outskirts. The war office pointed out that if the Turks were driven from this position they probably would evacuate Bagdad without a fight.

The latest official statement from Constantinople reported the British approach on Bagdad and apparently issued to prepare the Turkish people for the city's surrender.

General Maude's advance on Bagdad actually began only a few weeks ago, though he had been engaged with the Turks around Kut-el-Amara for several months.

The British began their final campaign against Bagdad immediately upon declaration of war with Turkey and within 17 days had captured more than 50 miles from the mouth of the Tigris. On September 29, 1915, a British force occupied Kut-el-Amara, 120 miles from Bagdad, and pressed on toward the city. After occupying Ctesiphon, only 15 miles from Bagdad, General Townshend's forces were defeated and driven back in sight of Kut-el-Amara. A force of ten thousand men left to garrison Kut, was surrounded and captured by the Turks.

Weather conditions and the necessity of filling up the ranks of the Indian troops in the Mesopotamian campaign delayed the new British advance for several months. After General Maude occupied Kut-el-Amara he encountered but little resistance, principally because of the defection of many Arabian tribesmen who had been fighting with the Turks, and pressed steadily up the Tigris.

Bagdad was founded by the Caliph Abu Ghafar al-Mansur about 762 A. D. and named by him Medinet al-Salam, meaning, "City of Salvation." The name Bagdad is said to have been derived from the name of a popular Muslim dervish.

For five centuries Bagdad was the brilliant capital of the Arabian Empire. Under Caliph Haroun-al-Raschid, Bagdad ruled over an empire that included all lands from India to Gibraltar and became a center of learning and civilization. But the Arabian Empire fell into decay, Bagdad was sacked by the Mongolians in 1258, and later fell successively into the hands of the Turks and Persians, finally becoming a part of the Turkish Empire in 1638.

The city itself is famous for its picturesque streets, famous mosques and minarets and remains of ancient Arabian architecture. Before the war it enjoyed a prosperous trade. Bagdad railway, financed by German capital, to the Persian Gulf, which was under way when war was declared, would have made Bagdad one of the most prosperous cities of the east.

TONY DENIER DEAD FROM INJURIES

Famous Clown Died This Morning in Kingston City Hospital Following Injuries Received From a Fall.

Anthony Denier, better known for half a century to American playgoers as "Tony" Denier, the original Humpy Dumpty clown, died at five o'clock this morning at the Kingston City Hospital, where he has been confined since March first, when he fell on an icy sidewalk near the City Hotel, of which he has been an inmate since last June.

Tony was found of walking and after he became an inmate of the City Hotel, he took long walks almost daily, no matter what the weather might be. It was while taking one of his usual walks that he fell on the ice and broke his arm. He was removed to the hospital, where his condition became serious, and his ultimate recovery became doubtful.

Tony was seventy-eight years old. For more than forty years he followed the theatrical profession, and he probably amused more amusement-seekers than any other man in America. Years ago he originated the Humpy Dumpty act and was known throughout the theatrical world as the Humpy Dumpty clown. He traveled throughout the entire United States and also visited Europe, where he played before big audiences.

When he became seventy years old, Tony retired from the stage. He had led an active life for forty years and had accumulated a competence which he believed would keep him for the remainder of his life. He bought some property in Chicago and decided to spend his remaining days there.

In 1910, Daniel Sully, the well-known actor and playwright of Woodstock, died, and in the months following there was considerable correspondence between his widow, Mrs. Louise Sully, and Tony, who had been a close personal friend of both Mr. and Mrs. Sully. In the recent trial of the suit brought by Tony against Mrs. Denier, it developed that Tony came to Woodstock to visit Mrs. Sully and married her after a two days' courtship. According to Mrs. Sully, Tony often had called her his "little girl," and had said that he had wanted for years to become her husband.

After the marriage, which occurred in the fall of 1910, Mr. and Mrs. Denier went to Chicago, where they remained part of winter. He disposed of his real estate in Chicago and returned to Woodstock after his business there was closed.

Several years ago Tony and his wife had a serious disagreement and Tony came to Kingston to live. He boarded at the hotel kept by the late Patrick Roman, and when his money was exhausted he continued to live at the hotel upon the bounty of Mr. Roman. After Mr. Roman's death, which occurred about a year ago, Tony removed to the City Hotel.

Soon after his separation from Mrs. Denier, Tony brought an action against her to compel the execution of a mortgage covering her real estate which he claimed she had promised to execute as a condition to his advancing $17,000 to her. On the trial of the case, which took place before Judge Hasbrouck recently, Mrs. Denier testified that the money was not advanced to her as a loan but as a gift, and that Tony had made the gift of his fortune in return for her promise to become his wife.

In his opinion in the case, which was handed down in February, Judge Hasbrouck stated that he disregarded the testimony of the promise of a mortgage as testified to by Tony, and also the testimony of Mrs. Denier that the money was a gift in consideration of her promise to marry, but that he found Tony was entitled to recovery of at least $3,222. Mrs. Denier filed a notice of appeal to the Appellate Division from the judgment entered on Judge Hasbrouck's decision and order, but it is understood that a settlement was made within the past two weeks at a reduction from the amount which Tony would have recovered if the judgment had been sustained by the Appellate Division.

In his suit against his wife, Tony was represented by William H. Grogan, who had befriended him in many ways since he came to Kingston, and by former City Judge N. Frank O'Reilly.

Tony testified in his suit that he had no family and no near relatives. It is understood that it was his wish to be buried in Chicago. Funeral arrangements have not yet been made.

VATICAN ACTIVE ON PEACE PLAN?

Presence of British and Spanish Ambassadors at the Holy See Believed to Have Bearing on New Move to End Hostilities.

(By Camillo Cusani.)
By Telegram to The Freeman.

Rome, Feb. 10.—(By Mail)—Since the rupture of diplomatic relations between the United States and Germany, the Vatican State Chancery has been the scene of unusual diplomatic activity. For nearly two weeks Cardinal Gasparri, secretary of state, and his able assistant, Mgr. Tedescini, have steadily denied themselves to all callers who visit the state chancery in search of news of the war. Their seclusion and the work imposed upon the small staff of prelates to whom the secrets of Vatican diplomacy are entrusted, are the object of endless comment, both in the Vatican and lay circles of the Italian capital.

This unusual activity of the Vatican Chancery coincides with the circulation of a report that the Pope is on the eve of making another move for the prompt cessation of hostilities. Though nothing is known of the nature of the new move, Vatican circles regard as extremely significant the fact that during the last few days the British and Spanish ambassadors to the Holy See, have been frequent callers at the state chancery. They were invariably escorted through the third lodge to the Pope's private working room where long conferences were held.

The same report adds that since President Wilson's peace efforts were nullified by Germany's announcement of a ruthless submarine war, the Pope, though sadly disappointed, resumed the work of peace, which he had, in a measure, abandoned while President Wilson was making his appeal. The Pope is said to believe that he has some reason for hoping for success this time because he has the hearty co-operation of Queen Victoria of Spain, an English princess, and Empress Zita of Austria.

According to one prelate, official information in possession of the Vatican State Chancery points to the fact that England has been and still is the only stumbling block in the way of peace. France, though determined to resist to the last man and her last penny, is not altogether opposed to meeting delegates of her enemy. She has nothing to fear—neither the loss of more territory nor the loss of her colonial empire.

The defense of Verdun has, in a measure, rehabilitated her military reputation, so badly shattered by the war of 1914-17.

England, however, remains obstinate and is determined to spurn any offer of peace or mediation until her armies have conquered on the battlefields, or her navy on the sea, all the islands she deems indispensable to a perpetuation, if not to an increase, of her prestige in the world. Count de Salis, the British ambassador to the Holy See, is said to have informed the Pope that England would not encourage any new attempt at mediation until after new effort by her armies in France.

OLD MAP OF SHAWANGUNK.

Blue Print Made from Johannes Bruyn's Work of 1708.

We are indebted to Mr. Frank D. Low, deputy superintendent of public buildings at Albany, for a blue print of Map No. 2 in the state engineer's office, says the New Palitz Independent. This is a map of the town of Shawangunk made in 1708 by Johannes Bruyn and certified by Joseph I. Hasbrouck, supervisor. This map bears about the same date as the one of Marlborough and Plattkill given by C. M. Woolsey in his History of Marlborough. We wish a map of New Palitz as old as these could be found, for probably they were made of other towns beside New Marlborough and Shawangunk. This map shows the roads, the Old Shawangunk church and the New Hurley church, the location of mills and taverns; also the residences of a number of citizens, but we are not sure whether these comprise all the residences in the town, or only those of the most prominent citizens. This map should certainly be framed and placed in the Memorial House.

At Bruyn's the residence of Johannes Bruyn is set down and near by a spot marked with the words "First settlement in the town made by Gertrud Bruyn, about 1692."

ACT IN HARMONY AS TO TERMINALS

Chambers of Commerce of Hudson Valley Favor that Course at Conference of Secretaries—Advertising Solicitation and Other Problems.

Secretaries of Chambers of Commerce of the Hudson Valley held a conference Friday at Poughkeepsie, at which matters of importance were considered. First among these was the matter of large canal terminals, the sentiment being in favor of the Walton bill providing for Kingston, Newburgh, Poughkeepsie and Yonkers, similar legislation to follow for the smaller communities once the initial project is under way. Mayor Palmer Canfield, President Sherck of the Poughkeepsie Chamber, and President McCoy of Peekskill are members of the Hudson Valley Chamber committee on this subject.

The need for Chamber of Commerce approval upon every scheme for soliciting advertising among merchants was shown, such a system being in effective operation in many cities of the state. It may be given a trial here. The O. K. of Chamber officers is required on any proposal for program and direct advertising before members will listen to it.

Approval of keeping the Hudson Valley organization intact was also unanimously voiced by secretaries and other officials present. Co-operation with the state body will follow, but no merger will be attempted. The state conference is set for Rome next Friday and Saturday and many of the Chambers will send delegates. Cities of the Hudson valley are co-operating with complete harmony to judge from the sentiments expressed at the conference. Following the morning session, dinner was served in the private dining room at the Nelson House, where the afternoon session was held. Secretary James E. Canfield was in attendance from Kingston.

BUFFALO DOES NOT SLIDE ANY MORE

In reply to an inquiry made by Cornellius Hume, president of the Kingston National Bank, in regard to so-called counterfeiters of the Buffalo nickel, a sample of which was submitted for examination, Mr. Hume today received from officers of the Irving National Bank of New York city a letter which states:

"I beg to advise that the Buffalo nickel returned herein is genuine. Our own experts rendered a decision in its favor, but I submitted it also to the sub-treasury. They tell me it is one of the first issues. Some criticism having been made particularly with respect to the Buffalo, who is apparently sliding off his pedestal, caused them to make a new design, which accounts for the differences in the two issues."

ODD FELLOWS BIG PINOCHLE LEAGUE

Clay Lodge Still in Lead With Kosciusko Lodge in Second Place—All Working Hard—League Closes March 28.

The pinochle experts of C. S. Clay Lodge are leading the pinochle league of the local Odd Fellow Lodges of the city, having won 35 and lost 27 games. Captain Jacob Port claims his men have only just begun to play and that Clay Lodge will continue to breeze in ahead of the other Odd Fellows and will be the ones who will be tendered a dinner when the league closes March 28.

This opinion is not shared by Captain Ray Whitlock of Kosciusko Lodge who points to the fact that Clay Lodge has only 9 more games to play while his fellow players have 15 games to play and believe when they have played all the games that they will flash into the lead.

But here again Captain David Bush points with pride to the work of his fellow players of Aetna Lodge and calls attention to the fact that his team has 18 more games to play, and with several practice in progress and some new wrinkles up their sleeves—not cards be it understood—but plans to gather in the necessary game, that Aetna Lodge will win the championship this year.

That may be so, according to Judge Henry E. McKenzie, captain of the Port Ewen Lodge, but his players have also 18 games more to play and just watch their smoke even if the Port Ewen bridge is not built.

THE TALE OF A STOLEN OVERCOAT

Harvey Delamater Applied for Job at Eagle Hotel, and Left With the Coat—His Arrest Leads to Police Asking Explanation from Julius Alton.

Harvey Delamater, who has been arrested numerous times on the old familiar charge of public intoxication, is now cast for another part in the drama of life and was arrested Friday evening by Policeman Healey on a charge of stealing an overcoat from the Eagle Hotel shortly after supper that evening. This morning Recorder Lang held the case open until Monday morning to give the drummer whose coat was stolen a chance to lodge a complaint against Mr. Delamater.

According to the tale as related on the police blotter a telephone communication was received by Sergeant Phinney from the Eagle Hotel that evening telling that a coat had been stolen from a guest and that Mr. Delamater was suspected of being the thief. It seems that Harvey had applied at the hotel for a job and left later with the overcoat. Sergeant Phinney sent out a general alarm and every officer was notified to keep an eye out for Harvey. Officer Healey was the fortunate man to pick Harvey up and take him to police headquarters where, after an examination, Harvey is said to have confessed to stealing the coat.

Harvey's confession is said to have brought out the statement that he had sold the coat to Julius Alton on the Strand for $1.20. This led Sergeant Phinney to notify Mr. Alton to visit Recorder Lang this morning and explain his side of the story.

It might be added that the police also recovered the overcoat which is worth many times $1.20. It is the property of Daniel Hurley, a standard Oil Company drummer, who was unable to be in court today as he was in Phenicia on business.

Mr. Alton who was in court was notified to appear again on Monday morning and Harvey was placed under $200 bail for his appearance in court at the same time.

HARVEY HAD A CHICKEN WITH HIM

It was an Umbrella Mender was Very Drunk and the Chicken was a Pet Bantam Hen He Carried Under One Arm.

While Policeman Shader was patrolling his beat on central Broadway on Friday evening he was somewhat startled to observe Joe Harvey, an itinerant umbrella mender staggering down the street with his umbrella flung over one shoulder and hugging a chicken to his breast. The chicken in this case was a pet bantam hen which Joe explained someone had given him. Joe and the chicken were escorted to police headquarters and while Joe reposed in a cell the chicken was turned over to Billy Scott to care for.

This morning Mr. Harvey was somewhat more sober than the night before and explained that the hen had been given him by Joe Gill, who resides on the corner of East Pierpont and Chambers streets. He was positive he had not stolen the hen, which was later claimed by young Gill and taken back home. The only charge lodged against Mr. Harvey was public intoxication and no complaint was made regarding the chicken and therefore Joe's story of how he came to have the hen with him stands unchallenged.

Recorder Lang, after hearing Joe's story, decided that ten days in the county jail would give Joe a chance to recuperate and accordingly sentenced him to the county hotel for the time stated. Mr. Harvey is a frequent lodger at the city hall but as far as known has never been arrested before.

Flags at Half Mast.

Today the flags on the steamers Mary Powell and Albany were placed at half mast in honor of Captain George A. White, assistant general manager of the Hudson River Day Line, who died on Thursday at Asheville, N. C. The two steamers are berthed for the winter at the Sunflower dock on the Empus side of the Rondout creek. Other craft also placed their flags at half mast.

Train Riders Arrested.

Walter Johnson and Harry Edwards were arrested Friday by Detective Goodsell of the West Shore railroad on a charge of train riding. This morning Recorder Lang held both young men until they could be interviewed by the railroad authorities regarding the death of a man who was killed by a train below Newburgh.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

By Telegram to The Freeman.

New York, March 10.—The news of the action of the president in calling an extra session, and the announcement of the determination of the policy of the administration to arm American ships was responded to with vigorous buying all through the list at the opening of the stock exchange today. The shipping shares were among the most prominent features. Marine Common advancing 1 1/4 to 2 1/4, the preferred 2 1/4 to 7 1/4, Atlantic Gulf and West Indies 2 1/4 to 10 1/4. Steel Common was traded in on a large scale, and rose 3/4 to 1 1/4, and many of the minor steel industrials made material advances. American Steel Foundries rose 3/4 to 6 1/4, Sloss-Sheffield a point to 6 1/4, and fractional gains were made in Baldwin Locomotive, and Republic Iron and Steel. American Smelting continued its upward movement, advancing 1/4 to 10 1/4. All the copper shares were active and strong, Anaconda advancing 3/4 to 30 1/4.

The market closed strong. Under leading many stocks which had made substantial gains in the first hour reacted from one to two points, but these reactions did not alter the general market tone. Steel Common after selling at 11 1/4, reacted to 11 1/4, and Marine Pfd. sold down from 7 1/4 to below 7. Utah Copper declined over a point. Government bonds unchanged, foreign and other bonds firm.

Doings of the Van Loons—Yes! Father thinks he knows how a person ought to feel.

By F. Leipziger

THE question of the hour is: "Shall the privileges of the sober man be subordinated in a vain endeavor to reform the drunkard?"

We refer to present agitation of the saloon-liquor-license question. It is a subject that will not permit of narrow-mindedness or hypocrisy. A majority of the American liberty-loving people want pure beer like

Old Stock Lager

Ten per cent of the workingmen in the larger cities have beer with their lunches. Life hasn't much cheer for them, and they find solace in a pint of beer. The men who do not care to frequent saloons keep beer in their homes. It is a national beverage from which only goodness is derived if sensibly used.

STREET GOSSIP ABOUT TOWN

"How is it you don't hear much nowadays about the Jefferson Club?" asked the friend of the street corner politician.

"They are still on the map," replied the politician, "although they are like the smaller places seldom heard of."

"Aside from its political purpose," said the friend, "it is a sort of social organization, is it not?"

"From what I understand," the politician replied, "it is, and they devote some time to the problems of the day."

"What problems?" asked the friend.

"How to pick a slate that will meet the approval of the other Democrats is of course the greatest problem," explained the politician, "but when not thinking of politics they are devoting some time to other problems of the day."

"For instance?" queried the friend.

"Well," replied the politician, "I understand at the present time they are deeply interested in the problem as to what animal or bird will live the longest without anything to eat."

"What has that got to do with politics?" asked the friend.

"Nothing," explained the politician, "it's just a problem for the hours of relaxation."

"What animal or bird will live the longest?" asked the friend.

"Before going into details," explained the politician, "it is taken for granted that this animal or bird is east above on a desert island which is barren with absolutely nothing on it to serve for food."

"And the idea," interrupted the friend, "is to determine what animal or bird would live the longest under those conditions?"

"You hit it exactly," said the politician.

"It is some problem at that," replied the friend thoughtfully.

"Yes," agreed the politician "but it is a good one to puzzle over during your hours of leisure."

"Have you given the matter any thought?" asked the friend.

"Well," replied the politician, "you know of course I am not a member of the club as I am not a Democrat, but since I have been informed that that was the problem they discussed in the club room I will say I have given the problem a little thought."

"With what result?" queried the friend.

"What animal or bird do you think would live the longest?" asked the politician in reply.

"I am stumped," said the friend.

"Well, to my mind," continued the politician, "the only one that would live the longest on this desert island would be a hen."

"A what?" asked the friend.

"A plain ordinary hen," retorted the politician.

"Where do you get off with that idea?" asked the friend.

"Very simple," replied the politician. "You remember, of course, that there is absolutely nothing to eat on this island."

"Yes," answered the friend.

"Well, under those conditions I contend a hen would live the longest of any bird or animal," said the politician.

"I can't see it," argued the friend.

"If left without food the hen would die in a very short time."

"And I say it would not," retorted the politician.

"How do you figure it out?" asked the friend.

"Well, you know and everybody knows that a hen's main purpose in life is to lay an egg each day," replied the politician.

"I get you," said the friend.

"Well," continued the politician, "the hen is thrown on this desert island the first day and, of course, lays its usual egg."

"Go on," urged the friend.

"Well," said the politician with a smile, "it does the same thing the next day and the next and the next and—"

"I give up," interrupted the friend.

"The politician who had warmed up to his argument did not notice the interruption and continued, "It lays an egg each day, and eats it."

STATE GRANGE REPORT.

Brief Summary of Most Important Matters Acted Upon.

(From The Spokesman.)

Many important recommendations and resolutions were passed at the recent meeting of the State Grange in Oneonta. From lack of space we cannot print all of these. We have picked out the ones we think are of most interest and in order to make that information attractive we are stating the gist of the particular resolution or recommendation as briefly as possible.

Farmer's Institutes and Farm Bureaus.

That in counties having Farm Bureaus the Legislature set apart the money used for Farmers Institutes for the use of the Farm Bureaus therein, for agricultural specialists expenses, and that the farmers institutes in such counties be discontinued.

Dairy Matters.

We believe the Dairyman's League to be a just organization necessary for the welfare of the dairy industry and desire that such laws covering cooperation be passed as will insure its legality.

That section 31 of the agricultural law be amended so as to provide for the securing of barns and dairies by the State Agricultural Department, such securing to be accepted by municipalities.

That section 55 of the agricultural law regarding license for milk dealers be amended so as to cover all purchasers of milk for resale, these to give bonds to the extent of 1 1/2 times the amount of their indebtedness at any one periodical time of payment. Amendment to further provide for the prompt cancelling of such licenses upon failure to make payments as provided in contracts.

That all milk testing at stations and creameries be done by persons licensed as the result of competitive examinations conducted by the State Department of Agriculture.

Department of Foods and Markets.

The approval of the department under the direction of John J. Dillon and the request for needed appropriations to enlarge the work.

Apple Packing Law.

A change in the grade B making it more liberal with regard to fungus and minor defects.

That in further legislation on the subject of the interest of the small fruit grower be carefully considered.

Trespassing.

The enactment of a law which provides:

That any person found hunting, shooting or taking game on the land of another without written or printed consent of the owner shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and punishable by a fine of at least $25.00.

Another resolution states:

That the protection now given posted premises be extended to all farm lands whether posted or not.

Destructive Wild Animals.

That fruit growers and nurserymen be given a special permit by the conservation commission, giving them a right to destroy rabbits or hares in any manner and at any time within the bounds of owners property.

That any owner or lessee of land for farming or fruit growing may kill any deer or other wild animals found upon his land during any one of the twelve months, the game warden of that district to be notified within twenty-four hours of such killing.

Farm Products and Food Stuffs.

A protest against any embargoes, boycotts or unnatural combinations to control the marketing of our farm produce.

Township School Law.

Much time was spent and much interest was manifested in the Township School Law. The result was eight resolutions.

The first places the final authorization for consolidation in the hands of the board of education of the town or towns concerned.

The second makes provision for equal representation from the school districts or units.

The third recommends provision whereby local school authorities may establish rural community schools having provisions for instruction in agriculture and home making. These schools to receive such state aid as will make possible their development without a tuition charge or an excessive town tax rate.

The fourth aims for uniform text books throughout each town.

The fifth limits the sum expended in any one year for new buildings or repairs to an amount not in excess of 1 1/2 % of the assessed valuation of the town and in no case in excess of $5,000 without the approving vote of the qualified school electors of the town.

Sixth recommends that district superintendents of schools be elected at a joint meeting of the members of the town board of education.

Seventh, Town board of education should be made up of the trustees elected by our present system, which board should elect its chairman and working committees. That political party designation in connection with the election of such trustees be prohibited.

Eighth, Resolution provided for a committee to look after further details in connection with this bill.

FLATBUSH.

Flatbush, March 9.—Mrs. William Robinson is ill with pneumonia. Her daughter, Lucilla of Kingston is staying with her.

Miss Helen Woolsey visited High Falls last week.

Herbert Swart of Port Chester is spending a few days with his parents here.

Mr. and Mrs. Chester Pearson entertained company last week.

A number of our people enjoyed the play at the Grange Hall Tuesday night by the Hurley people. They reported a good time and a large crowd.

Miss Hester Robbins of Highland was a week end guest of Mrs. William L. Swart.

A student from the New Brunswick College will preach as a candidate next Sunday. It is hoped many will be out to hear him.

To Keep Baby Quiet.

To keep an ever-restless youngster quiet and from crawling away all the time, get a large soft, gray blanket and cut gay designs from the nursery books and sew on the blanket, the pictures to be of linen cut from children's linen-books sold in all the shops. The bright pictures attract the child's attention, and he will sit for hours looking and picking at them. A baby fence around it completes the outfit.

OUR DAILY PATTERN.

1878.—A Simple Dress For Mother's Girl—Girls' One-Piece Dress, With or Without Shield.

Striped galatea is here shown. Shepherd check, novelty suiting or plaid woolen, serge, gabardine and velvet, corduroy and velvet are equally attractive. The pockets form an attractive feature, but may be omitted. The shield is adjustable. This pattern is cut in 4 sizes: 6, 8, 10 and 12 years. It requires 3 1/2 yards of 44 inch material for a 6 year size.

A pattern of this illustration mailed to any address on receipt of 10 cents in silver or stamps by the Pattern Department, The Freeman, Rondout, N. Y. Be sure to state the size wanted.

The KITCHEN CABINET

Who learns and learns, but acts not what he knows, is one who plows and plows, but never sows.

"Tis wise to be sure, but otherwise to be too sure."

SOME GOOD DISHES.

Slice brown bread in water thin slices, dot with bits of butter and sprinkle with a grating of lemon rind. Place in the oven to become piping hot. If the bread is the kind steamed in baking powder cans the slices are more attractive. They may be cut with a biscuit cutter.

Melons Muffins.—Beat two eggs very light, add one tablespoonful of sugar, one teaspoonful of butter, softened; one cupful of pastry flour, two tablespoonfuls of cream tartar and a teaspoonful of soda, sifted with the flour. Add a cupful of sweet milk, beat well and bake in buttered gem pans that have been heated hot. Bake in a quick oven.

Chicken and Chestnut Salad.—Mix a half a cupful of diced chicken with a half cupful of celery and a half cupful of boiled chestnuts, cut in slices; add two tablespoonfuls of finely chopped green pepper, salt, paprika and a dash of red pepper. Marinate with French dressing and serve with mayonnaise dressing.

Sweet Potato on Toast.—To two cupfuls of hot mashed sweet potato add four tablespoonfuls of sugar, two tablespoonfuls of butter and a half cupful of milk, with two beaten eggs and a dash of salt. Mix to a smooth paste. Cut bread in thin slices and spread with the paste; lay close together in a buttered pan and sprinkle with cinnamon and sugar. Bake in a hot oven and serve when golden brown.

Walnut Sauce.—Mix half a cupful of boiled rice, half a cupful of stale bread crumbs, and a cupful of ground walnut meats; add one tablespoonful of olive oil, one egg, salt, pepper and sage to taste. Shape in small cakes and cook lightly.

Stuffed Heart.—Fill the well-washed heart with seasoned dressing or mashed potatoes, cover with strips of pork fat and a little water, to which all sorts of seasonings are added. Serve with a border of cooked rice.

French Toast.—Bread dipped in egg and fried in hot butter, served with stewed prunes makes a delicious combination for breakfast.

At Clinton Chapter.

Clinton Chapter, O. E. S., held a very interesting meeting last evening. A large number attended.
The initiation of five candidates was
the feature of the evening, but a few other things didn't take a back seat either, such as the social hour sketch
with the many costumes of "Ye Olden Times," in which Mrs. Edward Angle was certainly a star, and the speech from Miss Sarah Hasbrouck
as Rosalia Jones, was received with applause, and the "It" served by the refreshments committee was enjoyed and talked of by all that partook of some and everyone was eating, and eating until very late. The special "stunt" by Russell Coles and Herbert Thomas caused the greatest hit
of the evening, and was immensely enjoyed by all.

Daily Thought.

Good sense must in many cases determine good breeding; because the same thing that would be civil at one time, and to one person, may be quite otherwise at another time, and to another person, but there are some general rules of good breeding that hold always true and in all cases.—Chesterfield.

KID WILLIAMS STILL HAPPY

Baltimore Battler Says He Isn't Afraid

Not Down-Hearted.

Kid Williams certainly is one game
bird. Most fighters after having the championship crown taken from them could be dejected for many days to come. Not so the case with Williams.
List what a traveler just back from
New Orleans has to say on the matter:
"You'll have to hand it to Williams
for one thing. He's the most satisfied former champion I ever saw. After the bout, when friends were calling

Kid Williams.

Rocap 'robber,' thief, 'murderer' and other titles, Williams advised them to lay off, and then added: 'Well, in a way, I'm glad it's all over.'

"When I had the title I was always afraid somebody would poison
me in order to win a bet. Now I am plain Johnny Williams and unworried.
I can still make money and have effers right now for five fights."

HOW SHE GOT HIM

By ELEANOR MARSH

"I wish," said Mrs. Perkins to her friend Mrs. Oglethorpe, "that Harry would take a wife. He needs something to settle him, and that is the only thing that will do it."

"Is he opposed to marriage?"

"He won't listen to it."

"What is his objection?"

"Why, you know, Harry inherited all
his grandfather's estate, nearly a million, and he has been a target for marriageable girls ever since. They have simply disgusted him."

Mrs. Oglethorpe said nothing for some time. She was thinking. Finally she broke silence.

"I think I know of a plan that will settle him. You know Madge Clavering? Well, you send Harry to me for the first fortnight in April. I'll have Madge with me, and with a little coaching I believe she will do what you wish."

"Madge is a good girl, and I would be glad to see Harry settle down with her."

Henry Perkins, through his mother's influence, was induced to go to Mrs.
Oglethorpe's. Madge was on hand,
ready for business.

"I have a young girl with me," said
Mrs. Oglethorpe, "whom I wish you to meet. You will find her somewhat depressed, but I trust association with you will make her feel more cheerful."

"I'll get her out of it," said Henry confidently.

Many and persons have a bad effect on others, but there was a resignation about Madge mingled with a cheerfulness of disposition that was attractive.
Then, too, she had a winning smile
which seemed to come through tears.
Henry was not informed what her
trouble was, but he soon got a pointer.
She was continually bringing up a paragon by the name of Silas Gibbs. Mr.
Gibbs was the most intellectual, the bravest, handsomest, most engaging man that had ever trod the face of the earth. The fact was delicately brought out by Madge that Henry Perkins was not worthy to loosen his shoes.

For the first time in his life Perkins found himself turned down for another man. Instead of being considered an Adonis, Mr. Gibbs was the Adonis. At first Henry wanted to get away from a girl who was forever talking about another man, but after awhile he became ambitious to eliminate this remarkable creature in his own favor.

"Are you a college graduate?" asked
Madge one day of Henry.

"Yes, I'm a Williams man."

"Where is Williams college? I never heard of it. I suppose it is one of the small institutions. Mr. Gibbs graduated at Harvard. He led his class for four years and took most of the prizes. He was president of his class
and class orator."

"Was he given to athletics?"

"Yes; he was captain of the football and baseball teams and strike car in the university crew."

"Anything else?"

Madge looked offended. On her face was an expression signifying, "Who are you to sneer at the exploits of a remarkable man?"

Now, Madge was the first girl who had not literally thrown herself at Henry Perkins, and she was constantly crying him down by comparison.
He was irritated; his self esteem was injured. For the first time in his life he hungered for a bit of encomium from a girl. When he found that he could not excite her admiration he endeavored to excite her sympathy. He had his troubles like every one else, and he told them to her. In this he was more successful. If she could not admire him she could at least pity
him. This brought them a trifle closer together. Gradually Mr. Gibbs faded away, and shortly before Perkins' visit was finished the immaculate figure was taken down from his pedestal.

That was the beginning of it. The next time Mr. Perkins longed for sympathy he sought Miss Clavering. She had become sufficiently weaned from
Mr. Gibbs to be very cordial to Mr.
Perkins, and when the latter told her
his troubles she burst into tears.

One day when Mrs. Perkins and Mrs.
Oglethorpe were together the former said:

"My dear Mrs. Oglethorpe, I owe you a debt of gratitude. Harry is engaged."

"To Madge Clavering?"

"Yes; through your contrivance. How did you manage it?"

"Oh, after what you said to me about girls throwing themselves at Harry I told Madge of it and left the rest to her. She held up to him an imaginary man who was simply perfect. Beside him Harry was a mere worm of the earth. In this way she brought Harry to value any bit of appreciation she might deign to give him, and when he asked for sympathy she poured forth a liberal dose. Harry is akin to love, you know, and Harry found that if he could not be admired he could at least be loved. So they're engaged, are they?"

"Yes, and Harry is very much in love. He is not contented a minute
when he is away from Madge."

"You don't mean it? When are they going to be married?"

"Harry wants to be married right off, but Madge says it will require months for her to get a trousseau."

"Well, Mrs. Perkins, I sincerely hope she'll make your son a good wife."

"I have no doubt of it; it will settle him, anyway."

"It certainly will."

"I can never forget your kindness."

izing the issuance of bonds of the city of Kingston, for the purpose of paying the water works, bonded indebtedness of the city, due June 1st, 1917, and August 1st, 1917.

Enacted March 6th, 1917.
The common council of the city of Kingston, in pursuance of the general municipal law of the state of New York, and of section eight thereof, the charter of said city, and chapter 24 of the laws of 1913 of the state of New York, ordains and enacts, and does hereby ordain and enact as follows:

SECTION ONE.—Resolved, that the existing water works bonds of the city of Kingston dated June 1, 1906, and issued under authority conferred by the city charter of the city of Kingston, and which bonds mature and fall due June 1st, 1917, and which said bonds bear interest at the rate of three and one-half per centum per annum, and which bonds are numbered and are of denominations as follows:

No. 13 to 15 inclusive, in denominations of $1,000 each, payable June 1st, 1917.
Total amount $3,000.

SECTION THREE.

Resolved, that in order to pay the bonded indebtedness of said city, that falls due as aforesaid, the city of Kingston may borrow and raise and in the name and on the faith and credit of said city, the sum of $24,000, for the same, and issue its bonds for such purpose; that the faith and credit of the city be, and the same hereby is pledged for the payment of said new bonds.

SECTION FOUR.—Resolved, that said new bonds shall be issued in the name of said city, and under the seal of said city, and signed by the mayor and city clerk, and shall also be signed by the president and secretary of the board of water commissioners, and that such new bonds shall be used for the purpose hereinbefore mentioned and for no other purpose; and that such new bonds shall contain a recital that they are issued in pursuance of section eight of the general municipal law of the state of New York, and the city charter, and chapter 24 of the laws of 1913.

SECTION FIVE.—Resolved, that such new bonds, when so made and executed, shall be delivered to the city treasurer of said city. That the city treasurer shall sell and negotiate the said bonds in the total sum of $24,000 as aforesaid, by public sale to the highest bidder, at the city hall in the city of Kingston, on the first day of June, 1917, at the best price obtainable, not less than their par value.
That the city treasurer shall and negotiate the said bonds in the total sum of $24,000 as aforesaid by public sale to the highest bidder, at the city hall in the city of Kingston, on the first day of June, 1917, at the best price obtainable, not less than their par value. The city treasurer shall give ten days notice of the time and place of such sale by advertising the same in the official papers of the city the same day.

SECTION SIX.—Resolved, that the proceeds of such sale of said new bonds in the total sum of $24,000, as aforesaid, shall be applied to the payment and satisfaction of the bonds which fall due June 1, 1917, in the same total amount, and for no other purpose. That the proceeds of such sale of said new bonds in the total sum of $24,000, as aforesaid, shall be applied to the payment and satisfaction of the bonds which fall due August 1, 1917, in the same total amount, and for no other purpose.

That the city treasurer shall immediately cancel, retire, and destroy the bonds so paid, and shall file a certificate in the City clerk's office stating the amount of the existing bonds and of the new bonds so issued, and make a report to the common council and to the board of water commissioners of the amount of bonds sold, and the name or names of the purchaser or purchasers.

SECTION SEVEN.—Resolved, that the city clerk keep a record in his office of such bonds, the date thereof, the amount and rate of interest, when payable, the name or names of the purchaser or purchases thereof, and pursuant to what law issued.

SECTION EIGHT.—Resolved, that the board of water commissioners raise and collect by water rates for the respective years when such new bonds become due and payable, a sum sufficient to pay the principal and interest of said bonds in full, and that said new bonds, including the interest there

KINGSTON, N. Y., MARCH 10, 1917.

Bi-partisan organization of the House of Representatives is a possibility, so close is the strength of the two leading parties. It may be that good will come of it during a National crisis such as we are now facing, but the principle is bad and at variance with American institutions. Division of power means division of responsibility and this latter, under our party system, is a potential source of inefficiency and waste, as under its workings the blame for such shortcomings is easily sidestepped. Republican Leader Mann is quoted as preferring bi-partisanship in control of the House rather than a small group of filibusters, but, unlike the Senate under its old rules, the House can limit a filibuster merely through the action of the Rules Committee when sustained by a majority. Patriotism comes before partisanship, and we believe that such order will be observed by our Representatives in Congress under the control of the House organization by either of the two leading parties. What benefits a bi-partisan combination could contribute to the situation are not apparent. Congress may be depended upon to uphold the President once he gets under way. The events of the past week and the country's attitude toward them have made assurance doubly sure of that.

Frenzied fulminations of food editors in the metropolitan press are the best kind of publicity for retailers anxious to raise prices without warrant. "Dairymen's League to Put up Prices" head-lined the New York Times of Friday and the article below the caption was every whit as misleading and damaging to the public interest. This alleged news was based upon the announcement of the League's schedule of prices for the six months beginning April 1st, a schedule extending pro rata to the remainder of the fiscal year the prices agreed upon by producers and distributors at the time of the settlement of the strike. It is not a new increase. It does not justify the increase of retail prices to consumers in the Greater City, the retail prices already having been adjusted to meet the higher rate paid the dairymen for this year. The six months basis for price schedules has no bearing on the retail price, already raised to meet the new conditions. In the face of these facts, it is not absolutely absurd for newspaper champions of the consumers to so obviously tempt retailers to take advantage of the state of the public mind, educated by such misleading reports to expect an immediate boost in milk prices?

The more one sees of this sort of journalism, the more one feels the loss to modern journalism in the failure to develop another Greeley or a Raymond to wage intelligent warfare for the public welfare. The more misinformation that is spread of imminent higher prices and shortages in supplies of foodstuffs the quicker individuals act for their own protection and proceed to flood the market with buying orders for larger quantities than needed. There is no question but that present methods of production are faulty, and also that methods of distribution are far worse. The consumer is confronted with a circle composed of producers, middlemen, transportation agencies and retailers, each group pointing the finger at the other as the one responsible. Legislators institute futile investigations and the press keeps each pack in full chorus from time to time. All go round in a merry carousel for which the public foots the bill, bewildered and confident that it is being bunked somewhere. It is unlikely that the true answer to the problem will be returned before the millennium unless science comes to the rescue and devises means to secure uniformity in weather conditions and crop production.

The State requires corporations, except railroads and some other exempt industries, to pay all employees weekly and not withhold more than a week's pay at any time. The same rule does not hold good with the State Government. A glittering example of just how Albany operates is furnished in the plight of the members of the Tenth Regiment who have been called out to the unpleasant duty of patrolling the New York city aqueduct. The order has been in effect more than a month and, under the law, the guardsmen are paid at the rate of $1.25 a day. Yet pay day has not yet arrived. The interruption to their work, to their home life and to normal activities is not considered. The guardsmen merely go where they are sent. At the same time, those of them with families have their responsibilities, and prompt payment of their wages by the State would be the greatest aid to their independence and well-being. Why is it that even ordinary business efficiency does not seem to be reflected in the Adjutant General's office in spite of the lessons of the mobilization last June and the strides supposed to have been made toward systematizing the business of the State departments?

We are glad to see that our boys in the High School are evincing a hearty interest in military training. It is a purely voluntary effort on their part and we trust that their activity will be sustained in this movement to the end of their school lives. Such a plan is not militarism. Indeed, one regrettable feature is the lack of that discipline which is the paramount attribute to the life of a soldier. Nevertheless, some knowledge of the manual of arms, setting-up exercises and drill will be thus obtainable and the results are bound to be most useful. The one item of an erect carriage is a great desideratum. How many students, and other young men for that matter, are to be seen today who do not know how to carry themselves. Stooped-shouldered and with slovenly gait, the bearing of many young Americans today is far from what it should be. If only to correct this shortcoming, these school exercises will be of utmost value. Due measure of public co-operation and enthusiasm should be given to this latest effort to instruct these young men in the rudiments of military training.

LITTLE LAUGHS.

"Is he farsighted?" "I should say so. He can see a man to whom he owes money four blocks away."—Detroit Free Press.

"Sir, have you an opening for a smart and energetic young man like myself?" "Certainly. There's the door just back of you."—Baltimore American.

"Wouldn't you like to have her singing beside you in the wilderness?" "Well, I'm in favor of the wilderness, but I wouldn't care to be there."—Judge.

Mrs. Kowler (discussing the war): "Belgium should be restored, of course." Mrs. Blunderby—"Yes, and as our President suggests, I think there should be an amnesty for Poland."—Boston Transcript.

"Professor Digs, the famous archaeologist, is said to have discovered half a dozen buried cities." "Mrs. Digs ought to be proud of him." "Well, yes, but she would probably have more respect for his ability as an explorer if she didn't have to find his hat for him nearly every time he leaves the house."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

And Such Nice Things to See.

"I never cared much to hear heaven too realistically and minutely described in the pulpit," said a listener the other day, according to The New York American. "In fact, these pulpit details about heaven makes me think of the little girl who tumbled in a drawer, exclaimed: 'There! Grandpa has gone to heaven without his spectacles!'"

True to His Own.

Premier Lloyd George of Great Britain was making a speech. He cried: "I stand for home rule for Ireland."—great cheering. "Home rule for Scotland"—some cheers. "Home rule for gallant little Wales"—thunders of applause and a voice: "One rule for 'ell, and yells of laughter, hisses and catcalls. "Right," said Lloyd George, "quite right. I like to see a man stand up for his own country!"—Philadelphia Star.

The Man Higher Up.

"Here, you!" cried the fur-coated man to the porter on the suburban station. "Don't you think that truck is rather dangerous in that position?" "Eh?" said the newly promoted porter. "Think it's rather dangerous, do you? Very good of you to pay attention to such things. I suppose you're going to tell me where to put it? Well, just cast your eye around. What about the booking office? Wouldn't that look better on the line? And the signal box? Shall we shift it into the main street? And how about the station-master's house—shall we move it on to the upper platform? Any opinion you'd like to express shall receive attention." "Ah!" said the promoted porter to the booking clerk. "D'you see how I tied that interfering old jossar up? Good, wasn't it?" "Well, I dunno about that," said the booking clerk. "He happens to be our traffic superintendent."—Pittsburgh Chronicle.

UPTOWN HOME HAS EDUCATED RABBIT

The Famous Peter Himself Has Nothing on Adventures of Bunny Who Shakes Furnaces, Braves Fire and Abductors in Winter of His Discontent.

"The rabbit is back—shaking the furnace again," was the enigmatic remark of an active member of the Nature-Fakers' Club to two associates this morning. Both manifested extreme interest although the utterance was a puzzle to others within hearing. Finally the story came out.

A man uptown purchased a rabbit last fall for the amusement of his daughter, a promising miss of four years. During her absence from town the rabbit was billeted upon a neighbor. Upon the daughter's return to the ancestral halls (clapboard and brick construction with all improvements), a bold burglary was committed upon the hutch at the neighbor's house and the pet rabbit with its mate, the property of the little girl in the neighbor's household, were forcibly removed. No trace nor track of the bunnies could be found and lamentations from the juvenile owners were loud and prolonged.

To go back to an earlier chapter, the first mentioned rabbit had developed peculiar traits in the first-mentioned house. It occupied a berth in the cellar, safe from marauding Zeppelins and jellies. While there housed, the natural curiosity of the rabbit was exhibited in striking degree. Like Fire Commissioner Lilling's snakes, this quadruped was of an investigating turn of mind and the furnace became an object of its attentions.

Twice this adventurous member of the family made famous by Peter and Mr. McGregor became engaged in the bottom of the furnace by running into the lower door left open by Peteranilities forcing the draft. He narrowly escaped cremation both times and earned the name of Shadrach upon his return, albeit a trifle singed but yet unscorched.

To resume—the banditti left no trace and the rabbit was unsighted and unseen until Thursday night a glimpse from an upper window toward midnight revealed Bunny holding high jinks in the moonlight on the snow under the old apple tree. Father forthwith sallied out but Shadrach had evidently forgotten the familiar sight of the bathrobe and refused to be coaxed. Desperate, the natural cunning of man in his contact with furry creatures of the wild asserted itself. He seized the waste-paper basket from the hearth and inverting it, put a carrot beneath, a stick under the edge of the tilted basket and attached string to the stick. The stage was set.

Curiosity, which is once said to have killed a cat, was Brer Rabbit's undoing. Uncle Remus to the contrary notwithstanding, that rabbit just had to investigate. He found the carrot, the string was jerked, the basket fell and Bun was again a captive.

Next morning joy succeeded gloom as a mourning household was made happy again and the proprietor of his Rabbitship announces that she is to keep him "forever and forever." The cellar again echoes with the shaking of the furnace as the family pet grows about its mysterious exterior, absorbing the calories of sundry carrots in the silent intervals between shakes.

American Mineral Oil

PRACTICAL HEALTH HINT.

Use of Mineral Oil.

Dr. Le Tanneur contributes to the Paris Medical some practical points in the use of mineral oil in constipation. The oil, he says, is in no way digested or even modified by the juices of the stomach and intestines. It acts as a lubricant and nothing else, though it tends to heal abrasions of the intestinal wall caused by rough particles of food. The New York Medical Journal says mineral oil should be taken either before breakfast or after dinner, two tablespoonfuls being a dose. Its use should be continued every day for at least a fortnight, when the bowels will continue to work naturally without it, for the mineral oil is in no sense a cathartic, but it will cure constipation.—Kingston Daily Freeman, February 17, 1917.

Standardized Lines

Less time consumed in the actual selling, means more time for personal contact with our friends. Our shelves hold only standardized lines—products half sold by name of merit gained by years of service. They cost more to us—money—but they leave time for the often hurried motorist to request a fog-lifting explanation of that point. That's what we want. To illustrate consider. MILLER Geared-to-the-Road TIRES.

Here is an established brand—product copyrighted in the regard of thousands of motorists. It is a real pleasure to sell Millers. No arguing—no visions of a scowling, returning face. A quick sale. And the saved time can be devoted to assisting you.

NEW YORK DOESN'T WANT TO PAY BILL

Friction Between City and State Said to be Holding Up Pay of Militiamen Now Guarding Ashokan Aqueduct.

Private advices received in New Paltz indicates there has come friction between the state of New York and the city of New York over the pay of the guardsmen now doing duty on the aqueduct, says the Newburgh News, and in view of the dispute the guardsmen who have not yet received any pay are likely to be held up for an indefinite period. According to the information received in New Paltz, the city of New York, at whose request the guardsmen were called out, is now unwilling to pay the bills, and as a consequence the money is being held up.

When the payrolls were signed, the men were given to understand their money would be forthcoming a few days after the first of the month. It is now the tenth of the month and the money has not been received nor is likely to be sent soon.

Under a law just passed, where the state authorities are called upon to provide troops the cost must be met by the county desiring assistance. The city of New York, it is understood, is now objecting to this payment and its officials assert that the cost should be a state charge. The state authorities rely on the law that it is a county charge.

In connection with the foregoing, it was said at the armory today that members of Company M, ordered out on February 8, had not yet received any pay although it was said that cutting of red tape would provide for prompt appearance on the part of the paymaster.

MISS FLORA WHITNEY
SOCIETY GIRL SAVES HERSELF
IN TREACHEROUS UNDERCURRENT.

Palm Beach, Fla., March 10.—Only the fact that she is an expert swimmer saved the life of Miss Flora Whitney, debutante daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney, of New York, when she was caught in an undercurrent some distance from shore. Miss Whitney swam beyond the first row of breakers and dived into the big waves. She disappeared and did not rise to the surface for such a time that several persons on the beach shouted and others swam rapidly to the spot where she was last seen. Suddenly she reappeared thirty yards away and was seen to be struggling in the grasp of an undercurrent, only to disappear again. When she next came to the surface Miss Whitney was nearly exhausted, but managed by exerting all of her strength to make her way to shore unaided.

It Couldn't Be True.

"There is some wrong, my love," said the husband. "I don't want any," replied the wife. "Come now, darling, take this $10 note and go out shopping." "Thank you, dear, but I really can't care to. I would rather stay at home and see to the housework." Then the husband wrote and told, so the reader has already suspected, that he had been drinking.

Thought He Was Drinking.

Margaret was not accustomed to the saying of grace. One night she went for supper with the next-door neighbors. "Daddy," said she the next morning, "what was that Mr. Smith read off the platter?"—New York Morning Post.

ENFORCE EXISTING LAW.

Much of Time Lost at Crossing Could be Saved.

Editor of The Freeman:

The mistake of our city authorities in allowing the West Shore railway line to enter the city at its present grade in 1882 still seems irreparable. But in extenuation of their action it should be said that the people of Kingston at that time were so anxious to get this great trunk line here at all under any conditions that very few restrictions of any kind were imposed. Nobody thought of looking ahead into the coming years when the normal growth and progress of the city might render this Broadway crossing one of the most important in the country. It was a glad day indeed when the first train from New York city arrived here. Had anyone proposed the depression of the tracks under Broadway then the condition of his mind would have been questioned.

Now, 35 years later, the whole matter presents a very different aspect. We are confronted with a very serious problem at this crossing where the traffic has become so great and important. Engineers and others have submitted various plans for the elimination of the street traffic from the railway grade. But thus far it will be conceded, I think, that none of these propositions would prove practicable or even desirable for the best interests of the adjoining property owners or the city at large. Even the depression of the tracks below the street, if it were possible to secure it, would not only be prohibitive in cost but also exceedingly detrimental to the heavy and important property interests there and a permanent disfigurement to that part of the city as well. All the other plans seem to contain many objectionable features aside from the great cost itself. It is therefore apparent that any of the remedies proposed would prove more objectionable than the evils they seek to remove.

In view of all this then why not drop the whole matter at once without any further expense or investigation and leave the crossing as it is? In doing this, however, it would seem that all traffic troubles there might be materially alleviated by the rigid enforcement of the existing law on the subject and such other ordinances as might be adopted. No train should be allowed to stop on this crossing at any time longer than the legal limit of five minutes, unless it be parted at the street to permit traffic to proceed. Should the conductor refuse to comply with this regulation the train crew should be promptly arrested. It is said that the removal of the train dispatcher's office further up the track would greatly facilitate this whole matter and leave little occasion to stop these long freight trains on this crossing at all. In order to secure regulations there it would seem that a city policeman should be permanently stationed at this point during the busy hours of street traffic, with full power to enforce the law.

We are grieved to learn of the sad experience which one of our neighbors and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Walsh, have passed through. Mr. Walsh is the foreman of the Fulton Furniture Company here. The other day he received a telephone message to come to his old home town in Vermont, his mother was just alive from a stroke of paralysis. He went at once and while there his mother died, and he sent for Mrs. Walsh. The funeral services were held this morning. We hear that the home of Mr. Walsh's father and mother burned last night, Mr. and Mrs. Walsh barely escaping with their lives, but the father was lost in the burning building. Mr. and Mrs. Walsh have the sympathy of a host of friends hereabouts.

Expert Advice For the Automobile Owner

Queries and Replies Covering Matters of Importance to the Man Who Runs a Car

When I throttle down the motor of my car for two or three minutes and then open the throttle the motor seems to choke and sometimes will stop altogether. Can you tell me the trouble?

Your trouble is in the carburetor. We suggest your trying a new auxiliary air valve spring. Also inspect the float and float valve and note if they work freely and properly.

What is the proper way to align the wheels of an automobile?

The proper method to align the wheels of an automobile is as follows: At the same distance above the ground as the center of the hub, the measurement is taken across the width of the spread of the two front wheels from the inner side of the rims of each. When this measurement has been carefully checked the wheels are rotated to different positions and measurements taken at the same height. They should always be the same. When the wheels have been found to be true, as far as this measurement is concerned, similar measurements are made at the rear of the wheel. The distance across the wheels at the rear will be slightly larger than in front on account of the toe-in generally allowed. This amounts to one fourth inch as a rule.

What valve timing should one use on a two cylinder opposed motor with a bore of four and one-fourth and a stroke of four and one-half inches?

Since the valve timing which will give ideal results for any given motor is a variable quantity and depends largely upon such details as manifold design, the only thing which can be done is to give you an approximate timing from which you can vary in one direction or the other until you attain the best results.

If the cams are already made and in the motor, you can only place them so that the valve openings will correspond with those given and allow the closing to take care of itself. A fairly average timing which should give good results is as follows: Intake valve opens ten degrees after upper dead center, and closes thirty-five degrees past lower dead center. The exhaust valve opens forty degrees before lower dead center and closes five degrees past upper dead center.

One of the electric headlights on my car throws a smaller radius of light than the other, the lamps being of the same candle power, and one seems as bright as the other. Why the difference?

It is probable that one of your lamps is out of focus. If you will examine your lamp you will note that the bulb can be moved forward and backward in relation to the reflector. This adjustment should be made until the ray of light thrown out by the lamp is equal to the others. In order to first ascertain, however, that it is the focal adjustment which is incorrect it would be a good idea to take the bulbs out of the lamps and interchange them. Then if the same light gives the greatest illumination and the reflectors are both clean it will certainly be a matter of adjusting the focus.

What is meant by spark advance and spark retard? Does advancing the spark mean to increase its volume?

Advancing and retarding does not affect the volume of the spark, but rather the time it takes place in the cylinder in relation to the piston position. If the spark occurs when the piston is just dead center it is then termed retarded. If before dead center then it is advanced.

When cranking a motor very slowly the spark must be retarded; otherwise an explosion may take place in the cylinder before the piston has reached top center and reverse. This reversing is termed a kick and will often break the arm. The amount of advance to give the spark when driving depends upon the speed of the motor. If the motor is pulling hard and turning over slowly then the spark cannot be so far advanced. If turning freely and fast then the full advance is advisable.

I have a 1910 car, which has magneto only for the ignition system. I find it difficult to start the motor. Last year I had no trouble. Will you please explain the cause of this?

When starting on magneto the spark lever should be advanced. If this was done and your engine does not start easily then clean and readjust the platinum points on the circuit breaker. Since you have a 1910 car and have doubtless used it considerably we would advise your having the magnets remagnetized.

I had the motor in my car overhauled recently, and since that time it runs well at a slow rate of speed, but when I go faster than twenty miles an hour it misfires. I have four coils with buzzers; no magneto. What do you think is wrong?

If you are sure that the carburetor is adjusted properly for high speed we would suggest that you clean out the timer so that the roller will make a clean contact with the segments or contact pieces. If they are rather dirty the roller on the end of the timer shaft would not make a good electrical connection with them when going very fast.

Protecting Vehicles From Autos.

To protect vehicles from being run into by automobiles at night an inventor has patented a prism that catches rays from lights and deflects them through a pane of red glass.

For Your Desk.

A sheet of corrugated paper is a handy thing for your desk to hold wet pens or brushes. The paper absorbs the liquid and the corrugations hold the pens or brushes in handy position.

I am overhauling my car, which has been driven about 20,000 miles and is in very good condition, except that it does not seem to have the power which it had a few months ago. In cranking the motor I notice that the compression is not as strong. I am under the impression that I should install new piston rings. However, I do not wish to do this unless it is absolutely necessary. The rings seem to be in first class condition. Some advise me one way, others another. What is your opinion?

It is customary in overhauling a motor which has been run for any great length of time to renew the piston rings. These rings act under spring tension and are subject to considerable wear. They are not expensive and if properly fitted will considerably increase the power of the motor. With a loss of compression you can hardly expect to obtain the full benefit from your motor. The old rings, no doubt, are the cause of this loss of power, and accordingly should be replaced.

It has been suggested that instead of using alcohol or other anti-freezing solutions in the radiator that I drain the water entirely out and put in kerosene. Would this provide effective cooling on moderately warm winter days, and would any other harm be done than the action on the rubber hose?

This is not advised. Of course it would not freeze and would cool the motor, although pure kerosene is much more volatile than water, and it would evaporate rapidly with an accompanying evil smell. Furthermore, a leaky hose line is no place for such a readily ignited fluid as kerosene. In any event kerosene would soon set the rubber flaking because of its deleterious action.

Will you please give me all the information you can on soldering aluminum?

Aluminum is soldered by the use of a blow torch. A solder which may be used without flux is composed of seventy-five and five-tenths parts of tin, eighteen parts of zinc and two and five-tenths parts of aluminum. The parts should be slightly heated before applying. The solder should be forced in place by means of a stiff metal brush. Another solder which requires a flux, however, is made up of 80 per cent tin and 20 per cent zinc, stearic acid being used as a flux.

The objection to soldering aluminum is that the joint is not very strong.

Is there anything that may be used to brighten up the glass on mica used for windows in automobiles?

Mine are getting yellow and are somewhat scratched.

Use a solution of vinegar and water. Be sure, however, that the solution does not get on to the curtain material other than the mica. Of course this will not take the scratches out of the mica, but it will restore it to its original color.

How does one fit babbit bearings on crank shaft and connecting rods, either when putting in new ones or when taking up slack in old ones?

If only slightly worn, bearings may be adjusted by removing shims or by filing the bearing caps. If the bearings are scored or worn out of round or if new bearings are put in, the surfaces must be scraped.

If the bearing surfaces are in good condition and not worn out of shape a slight adjustment should be sufficient to make them tight. There are usually several shims under the bearing cap, and by removing these one by one the looseness will disappear. Remove only enough shims to make the bearing a snug but not a tight fit. When shims are not used the lost motion may be removed by placing the bearing cap in a vise and filing down the surface. In case too much material is removed a copper or paper shim or shims should be inserted to make the cap fit. In filing, the flat surface of the bearing cap should be preserved, the file not only being held flat against the surface, but the movement of the tool being carefully executed.

If the gearing is scored, new or worn out of round it will need scraping. This should be done by an experienced man. Connecting rod bearings may be scraped without tearing down the motor, but if the main bearings require scraping the motor must be disassembled and the crank case placed upside down with the crank shaft and flywheel still in position. The main bearing caps are removed, and the crank shaft bearing surfaces are painted with a solution of prussian blue. After retaking the crank shaft a few times and removing it the high spots of the bearings will be coated with the blue. These spots are carefully removed with a special scraping tool, care being taken not to cut too deep. Then the crank shaft is repainted and the operation repeated until the few large high spots have given place to more evenly distributed small ones, showing that the bearing makes contact at practically every point.

How often should a storage battery be cleaned and refilled with liquid?

A storage battery should be tested and filled with pure water without fail once every week in summer and every two weeks in winter.

Foresight and Courage

Automobile values as at present established are largely due to the foresight and courage of Mr. John N. Willys, the president of this institution.

He foresaw the universal use of the automobile and had the courage to produce quality cars in larger quantities than they had ever before been produced.

Steadily increasing production made possible savings and economies which steadily reduced costs and repeatedly established new values.

Eight years ago, with a net worth of little more than $50,000 this company produced 465 cars.

This year, with a net worth of over $68,000,000 we must produce over 200,000 cars to fill our dealers' contracts.

It has required an enormous investment in plant and equipment to prepare for this enormous production.

The prime requisite in the automobile industry is still foresight and courage.

Mr. Willys foresees a demand this year in excess of the possible supply.

In addition to enormous investment in plant and equipment Mr. Willys had the courage to contract long ago for enormous quantities of raw materials—$35,000,000 worth already in hand for this year's record production.

See all this reflected in the values we have to show you in the most comprehensive line of cars ever built by any one producer.

Note especially the remarkable values represented in the Big Four at $850 and the Light Six at $985.

STATE GRANGE REPORT.

Brief Summary of Most Important Matters Acted Upon.
(From The Spokesman.)

Many important recommendations and resolutions were passed at the recent meeting of the State Grange in Oneonta. From lack of space we cannot print all of these. We have picked out the ones we think are of most interest and in order to make that information attractive we are giving the gist of the particular resolution or recommendation as briefly as possible.

Farmer's Institutes and Farm Bureaus.

That in counties having Farm Bureaus the Legislature set apart the money used for Farmers Institutes for the use of the Farm Bureaus therein for agricultural specialists expenses, and, that the farmers institutes in such counties be discontinued.

Dairy Matters.

We believe the Dairymen's League to be a just organization necessary for the welfare of the dairy industry and desire that such laws covering co-operation be passed as will insure its legality.

That section 31 of the agricultural law be amended so as to provide for the scoring of barns and dairies by the State Agricultural Department such scoring to be accepted by municipalities.

That section 55 of the agricultural Mauvelous Muffins.

Beat two eggs very light, add one tablespoonful of sugar, one teaspoonful of butter, softened; one cupful of pastry flour, two teaspoonfuls of cream tartar and a teaspoonful of soda, sifted with the flour. Add a cupful of sweet milk, beat well and bake in buttered gem pans that have been heated hot. Bake

THE question of the hour is: "Shall the privileges of the sober man be subordinated in a vain endeavor to reform the drunkard?"

That all milk testing at stations and creameries be done by persons licensed as the result of competitive examinations conducted by the State Department of Agriculture.

Department of Foods and Markets.

The approval of the department under the direction of John J. Dillon and the request for needed appropriations to enlarge the work.

Apple Packing Law.

A change in the grade B making it more liberal with regard to fungus and minor defects.

That in further legislation on the subject the interest of the small fruit grower be carefully considered.

Chicken and Chestnut Salad.—Mix half a cupful of diced chicken with a half cupful of celery and a half cupful of boiled chestnuts, cut in slices; add two tablespoonfuls of finely chopped green pepper, salt, paprika and a dash of red pepper. Marinate with French dressing and serve with mayonnaise dressing.

Sweet Potato on Toast.—To two cupfuls of hot mashed sweet potatoes add four tablespoonfuls of sugar, two tablespoonfuls of butter and a half cupful of milk, with two beaten eggs and a dash of salt, mix to a smooth paste. Cut bread in thin slices and spread with the paste; lay close together in a buttered pan and sprinkle with cinnamon and sugar. Bake in a hot oven and serve when golden brown.

Walnut Sausage.—Mix half a cupful of boiled rice, half a cupful of stale bread crumbs, and a cupful of ground walnut meats; add one tablespoonful of olive oil, one egg, salt, pepper and sage to taste. Shape in small cakes and cook lightly.

Stuffed Heart.—Fill the well-washed heart with seasoned dressing or mashed potatoes, cover with strips of pork fat and a little water, to which all sorts of seasonings are added. Serve with a border of cooked rice.

French Toast.—Bread dipped in eggs and fried in hot butter, served with stewed prunes makes a delicious combination for breakfast.

Township School Law.

Much time was spent and much interest was manifested in the Township School Law. The result was eight resolutions.

The first places the final authorization for consolidation in the hands of the board of education of the town or towns concerned.

The second makes provision for equal representation from the school districts or units.

The third recommends provision whereby local school authorities may have a voice in the community schools having provisions for instruction in agriculture and home making. These schools to receive such state aid as will make possible their development without a tuition charge or an excessive town tax.

The fourth aims for uniform textbooks throughout each town.

The fifth limits the sum expended in any one year for new buildings or repairs to an amount not in excess of 1% of the assessed valuation of the town and in no case in excess of $5,000 without the approving vote of the qualified school electors of the town.

Sixth recommends that district su-

Washington, D. C., March 10.

The sitting hen, which is used most generally for incubation purposes on the farm should receive a certain amount of care and attention during the process of hatching eggs. To a great extent the care given a sitting hen plays an important part on the number and condition of the chicks when hatched. With this end in view, the poultry specialists of the U. S. Department of Agriculture make the following suggestions:

If several hens are sitting in the same room, see that they are kept on the nests, allowing them to come off only once a day to receive feed and water, the feed to consist of corn, wheat or both. If there are any that do not desire to come off themselves, they should be taken off. Hens usually return to their nests before there is any danger of the eggs chilling, but if they do not go back in half an hour in ordinary weather, they should be put on the nest. Where a large number of sitters are kept in one room it is advisable to let them off in groups of from 4 to 6 at a time. The eggs and nests should be examined and cleaned, removing all broken eggs and washing those that are soiled; in the latter case the soiled nesting material should be removed and clean straw added. Nests containing broken eggs that the hen is allowed to sit on soon become infested with mites and lice, which cause the hens to become uneasy and leave the nest, often causing the loss of valuable sittings of eggs. In mite-infested nests, the hen, if fastened in, will often be found standing over rather than sitting on the eggs. Many eggs that are laid in the late winter and early spring are infertile. For this reason it is advisable to set several hens at the same time. After the eggs have been under the hens from 10 to 15 days, the time depending somewhat on the color and thickness of the shells—white shelled eggs being easier to test than those having brown shells—they should be tested, the infertile eggs and dead germs removed, and the fertile eggs put back under the hen. In this way it is often possible to put all the eggs that several hens originally started to sit on under fewer hens and reset the others. For example, 30 eggs are set under 3 hens at the same time, 10 under each. At the end of 7 days we find on testing the eggs from all the hens that 10 are infertile, which leaves us 20 eggs to reset, which we do by putting them under 2 hens, and have the remaining hen sit over again after she has sat only 7 days. In this way considerable time can be saved in one's hatching operations.

Testing Eggs for Fertility.

An egg, whether impregnated or not, has a small grayish spot on the surface of the yolk known as the "germinal spot." As soon as a fertile egg is placed under a hen, or in an incubator, development begins. All eggs should be tested at least twice during the period of incubation, preferably on the seventh and fourteenth days, and the infertile eggs and dead germs removed. White eggs can be tested on the fourth or fifth day, while the development in eggs having brown shells often can not be seen by the use of an ordinary egg tester until the seventh day. Dead germs soon decay and give off a bad odor if allowed to remain under the hen. Infertile eggs make good feed for young chickens, and are often used in the home for culinary purposes. Most incubator companies furnish testing chimneys with their machines which will fit ordinary lamps. Electric or gas lamps may be used in a box with a hole slightly smaller than egg cut in the side of the box and at the same level as the light. They may also be tested by sunlight, or daylight, using a shutter or curtain with a small hole in it for the light to shine through.

A good home made egg tester, or candle, can be made with a large shoe box or any box that is large enough to go over a lamp, by removing the end and cutting a hole a little larger than the size of a quarter in the bottom of the box, so that when it is set over a kerosene lamp the hole in the bottom will be opposite the blaze. A hole the size of a silver dollar should be cut in the top of the box to allow the heat to escape.

The eggs are fed with the large end up, so that the size of the air cell may be seen as well as the condition of the embryo. The testing should take place in a dark room. The infertile egg when held before the small hole with the lamp lighted inside the box will look perfectly clear, the same as a fresh one, while a fertile egg will show a small dark spot, known as the embryo, with a mass of little blood veins extending in all directions. If the embryo is living, if dead, and the egg has been incubated for at least 46 hours, the blood settles away from the embryo toward the edges of the yolk, forming in some cases an irregular circle of blood, known as a blood ring. Eggs vary in this respect, some showing only a streak of blood. All infertile eggs should be removed at the first test. The eggs containing strong, living embryos are dark and well filled up on the fourteenth day and show a clear, sharp, distinct line of demarcation between the air cell and the growing embryo, while dead germs show only partial development, and lack this clear, distinct outline.

MILTON.

Milton, March 10.—At a meeting of the board of education held on Tuesday evening Principal Dwight M. Warren and Miss Mary McManus were engaged to teach the coming school year.

Several parents and friends of the pupils visited the school on Tuesday afternoon, but the teachers would have welcomed many more. The pupils were found doing good work with the prospect of accomplishing much success at the close of the year. After performing a drill in physical training and marching in quite a military manner, marking the time exceedingly well, the school was dismissed and Principal Warren explained important matters concerning the school to the edification of the parents. The teachers would like to have parents and interested friends of the school (and who should not be interested?) to visit the rooms at any time.

Invitations are issued in honor of the 30th anniversary of the marriage of Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Clarke.

C. S. Northrup was in Poughkeepsie on Wednesday.

Fred Boss and sister, Miss Lottie Boss, have returned to their home in New York city after spending several weeks with Mr. and Mrs. F. C. Wood.

Walter R. Clarke and sister, Miss Lulu Clarke, returned from the south last week.

Messrs. L. Mackey and J. R. Wood report having visited Mr. and Mrs. P. V. L. Purdy at St. Cloud, Fla.

The sunny south is a very delightful place to sojourn in during the winter, but Mr. and Mrs. Purdy have made it their home all the year 'round, and are now longing to return to their native soil. Of course our people would miss very much the green lawns, which owing to the sandy soil is not seen.

On Friday, the 2nd inst., death claimed Miss Amanda Watson, aged 75 years. Miss Watson came here with her father and mother many years ago. Since their death, some 30 or more years ago, she lived alone, but for the past year or so, owing to failing health, she broke up house-keeping and has lived with Mr. and Mrs. P. A. Lyons, who have faithfully cared for her. The funeral was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Lyons on Tuesday morning, the Rev. Mr. Davis, rector of the Episcopal church, officiating. Interment in Cedar Hill cemetery, under the direction of Undertaker H. V. Briscoe.

There will be an entertainment in the M. E. Church on Friday evening, March 16, at 8 o'clock, under the auspices of Group One of the Ladies' Aid Society and the Epworth League. There will be recitations and music, both vocal and instrumental, by local and out of town talent. Admission, adults 25 cents; children 15 cents.

Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Conklin, Jr., entertained the following friends on Tuesday last: Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Jenkins, Mr. and Mrs. Charles R. Taber, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Sears, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Fred Velle, Mr. and Mrs. William H. Lyons, Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Woolsey, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Fred Woolsey, Mr. and Mrs. William Rhoades, Mr. and Mrs. R. M. Round, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Sears, the Misses Florence Woolsey, Marion Patten, Fannie Ritters, Caroline Sears and E. M. Wood.

Mrs. Lena R. Smith, Mrs. Ellen Anderson, Mrs. Stott Anderson and Miss Gladys Townsend were in Newburgh on Thursday last and saw Marie Doro in the film production, "Oliver Twist," at Taylor Opera House.

Ernest Bell has resigned his position with the Electric Company, Harrison, N. J., and will go into fruit growing with his father, A. E. Bell, who recently purchased the McCabe farm.

The Woman's Home Missionary Society met with Mrs. William H. Donaldson on Wednesday afternoon.

Prayer meeting and teachers' training class at the parsonage on Thursday evening. Happy Hour Club on Friday evening at the parsonage at 7:30.

The regular monthly business meeting of the Epworth League was held at the home of Isaac Conklin, Sr. After the business meeting a social hour was enjoyed with games and music and refreshments served.

Owing to the very stormy weather on Monday only three Milton women attended the meeting at Marlborough in the interest of Red Cross work, the Misses de Leon and Clarke.

The Ennist family are expecting to move into the Nelson Purdy property north of the village.

Ambrose Ennist has resigned his position at the telephone central and is now working on the P. F. Wanzer farm.

Maurice Dayton, who lost valuable tools in the well on the Nicklin place near Marlborough, succeeded in finding them this week. This has been an expensive job for Mr. Dayton, as it has cost him $150 for fishing tools and hiring a man, with so much lost time, having had the accident about Christmas time.

Mrs. Percy Hunter is visiting her sister and brother Mrs. Cassels and Leland Jansen, in Pittsfield, Mass.

Mrs. Edward Thiells is visiting Mrs. Warren in Marlborough.

Mrs. William Stinson has gone to a New York hospital again for treatment.

We were glad to hear that there were over thirty women gathered together on Monday afternoon in the Marlborough school building for the purpose of organizing under the Red Cross workers of Ulster county.

Look for the Best.

You will find it less easy to uproot faults than to choke them by gaining virtues. Do not think of your faults; still less of others' faults; in every person who comes near you look for what is good and strong; honor that; rejoice in it; and your faults will drop off, like dead leaves, when their time comes.—Ruskin.

At Clinton Chapter.
Clinton Chapter, O. E. S., held a very interesting meeting last evening.
A large number attended.
The initiation of five candidates was
the feature of the evening, but a few other things didn't take a back seat
either, such as the social hour sketch
with the many costumes of "Ye Olden Times," in which Mrs. Edward Angle was certainly a star, and the
speech from Miss Sarah Hasbrouck
as Rosalia Jones, was received with applause, and the "rit" served by the refreshments committee was enjoyed
and talked of by all that partook of
some and everyone was eating and singing until very late. The special "stunt" by Roswell Coles and Herbert Thomas caused the greatest hit
of the evening, and was immensely
enjoyed by all.

Daily Thought.
Good sense must in many cases determine good breeding; because the same thing that would be civil at one
time, and to one person, may be quite otherwise at another time and to another person, but there are some general rules of good breeding that hold
always true and in all cases.—Chester-

KID WILLIAMS STILL HAPPY

Not Down-Hearted.

Kid Williams certainly is one game
bird. Most fighters after having the championship crown taken from them would be dejected for many days to come. Not so the case with Williams.
List what a traveler just back from
New Orleans has to say on the matter:
"You'll have to hand it to Williams
for one thing. He's the most satisfied former champion I ever saw. After the bout, when friends were calling

Kid Williams.

Recap 'robber,' 'thief,' 'murderer' and other titles, Williams advised them to lay off, and then added: 'Well, in a way, I'm glad it's all over.'
"When I had the title I was always afraid somebody would poison
me in order to win a bet. Now I am
plain Johnny Williams and unworried.
I can still make money and have offers right now for five fights."

HOW SHE GOT HIM

By ELEANOR MARSH

"I wish," said Mrs. Perkins to her friend Mrs. Ogilthorpe, "that Harry would take a wife. He needs something to settle him, and that is the only thing that will do it."

"Is he opposed to marriage?"
"He won't listen to it."

"What is his objection?"
"Why, you know, Harry inherited all
his grandfather's estate, nearly a million, and he has been a target for marriageable girls ever since. They have simply disgusted him."

Mrs. Ogilthorpe said nothing for some time. She was thinking. Finally she broke silence.

"I think I know of a plan that will settle him. You know Madge Clavering? Well, you send Harry to me for the first fortnight in April. I'll have Madge with me, and with a little coaching I believe she will do what
you wish."

"Madge is a good girl, and I would be glad to see Harry settle down with
her."
Henry Perkins, through his mother's influence, was induced to go to Mrs.
Ogilthorpe's. Madge was, on hand,
ready for business.

"I have a young girl with me," said
Mrs. Ogilthorpe, "whom I wish you to meet. You will find her somewhat depressed, but I trust association with
you will make her feel more cheerful."

"I'll get her out of it," said Henry
confidently.

Many sad persons have a bad effect
on others, but there was a resignation about Madge which was a cheerfulness of disposition that was attractive.
Then, too, she had a winning smile
which seemed to come through tears.
Henry was not informed what her
trouble was, but he soon got a pointer.
She was continually bringing up a paragraph by the name of Miss Gibbs.
Mr. Gibbs was the most intellectual, the bravest, handsomest, most engaging man that had ever trod the face of the earth. The fact was delicately laid out by Madge that Henry Perkins was not worthy to loosen his shoes.

For the first time in his life Perkins
found himself turned down for another man. Instead of being considered an Adonis, Mr. Gibbs was the Adonis. At first Henry wanted to get away from
a girl who was forever talking about another man, but after awhile he became ambitious to eliminate this remarkable creature in his own favor.

"Are you a college graduate?" asked
Madge one day of Henry.

"Yes, I'm a Williams man."

"Where is Williams college? I never heard of it. I suppose it is one of the small institutions. Mr. Gibbs graduated at Harvard. He led his class for four years and took most of the prizes. He was president of his class
and class orator."

"Was he given to athletics?"
"Yes, he was captain of the football and baseball teams and struck out in the university crew."

"Anything else?"
Madge looked offended. On her face was an expression signifying, "Who are you to sneer at the exploits of a remarkable man?"

Now, Madge was the first girl who had not literally thrown herself at Henry Perkins, and she was constantly crying him down by comparison.
He was irritated; his self esteem was injured. For the first time in his life he longed for a bit of encouragement from a girl. When he found that he could not excite her admiration he resolved to excite her sympathy.

He had his troubles like every one else,
and he told them to her. In this he was more successful. If she could not admire him she could at least pity
him. This brought them a trifle closer together. Gradually Mr. Gibbs faded away, and shortly before Perkins visited was finished the immaculate figure was taken down from his pedestal.

That was the beginning of it. The next time Mr. Perkins found for sympathy he sought Miss Clavering. She had become sufficiently weaned from
Mr. Gibbs to be very cordial to Mr.
Perkins, and when the latter told her
his troubles she burst into tears.

One day when Mrs. Perkins and Mrs.
Ogilthorpe were together the former
said:

"My dear Mrs. Ogilthorpe, I owe you a debt of gratitude. Harry is engaged."

"To Madge Clavering?"
"Yes, through your contrivance. How did you manage it?"

"Oh, after what you said to me about his throwing himself at Harry, I told Madge of it and left the rest to her. She held up to him an imaginary man who was simply perfect. Beside him Harry was a mere worm of the earth. In this way she brought Harry
to value any bit of appreciation she might deign to give him, and when he asked for sympathy she poured forth a liberal dose. Pity is akin to love, you know, and Harry found that at least he loved. So they're engaged,
are they?"

"Yes, and Harry is very much in love. He is not contented a minute
when he is away from Madge."

"You don't mean it? When are they going to be married?"

"Harry wants to be married right
off, but Madge says it will require
months for her to get a trousseau."

"Well, Mrs. Perkins, I sincerely hope
she'll make your son a good wife."

"I have no doubt of it; it will settle him, anyway."

"I can never forget your kindness."

How to Succeed.

Believe in yourself; believe in humanity; believe in the success of your undertaking. Fear nothing, and no one. Love your work. Work; hope; trust. Keep in touch with today.
Teach yourself to be practical and up-to date, and sensible. You cannot fail.

SENIORS WIN FROM JUNIORS 28 TO 21

Basketball Tussle Between Classes Makes Lot of Excitement in High School Gym—Game to be Played on Arbor Day.

Whenever the students at the high school get a blanketing for a blood-curdling, hair-raising basketball spectacle as a relaxation from their colorless routine in the class rooms they can rely on the Seniors and Juniors to produce the goods. Friday afternoon is a fine time for a breaking loose of animal spirits and yesterday afternoon both factions gave such a free rein that the game was a sizzler. The Seniors won, 28-21, and thereby snatched the inter-class championship, unless the sophomores will be able to down them, as they won the previous game from the 18 class.

Evidently there had been little consultation of the rules of the game and Prof. Schumaker was well nigh a nervous wreck after he had called a total of 27 fouls on the Seniors and 28 on the Juniors. Even these little delays didn't retard the battle as both quintets fought valiantly every minute.

At half time the score was 11-10 with the Seniors in the lead. The lineup was as follows:

	FB.	TP.	TP.
Seniors

Blondes Brunettes Again.

The Blondes will stage their "come back" at the Brunettes Tuesday afternoon. The dark ones won the last encounter. As the varsity girls are allowed to take part in these contests they are well played.

Arbor Day Game Planned.

Manager Ernst of the baseball team, is negotiating with the Christian Brothers' Academy of Albany for a game here on Arbor Day. About the capital they have a good "rep" and it is hoped that they will accept.

Cassell Must be Good.

Oscar Cassell of Glasco was brought before Judge Chidester of Saugerties on Friday on complaint of his wife who alleged that Oscar did not provide means of support. Officer Ricketson of the Saugerties police department made the arrest on Thursday afternoon. Cassell pleaded guilty to the charge when arraigned and was sentenced to the Albany Pen for 180 days but sentence was suspended during good behavior. Judge Chidester warned Cassell to observe the law in the future and any violation would land him in the penitentiary. Oscar has been before the saugerties justice before.

Quite Unprofitable.

We suppose there's nothing less profitable than indulging in vain regrets, but still we often wonder in our melancholy how many more we'd be worth now if we had never spilled any gasoline on the garage floor, our clothing, and our person.—Ohio State Journal.

Daily Thought.

For, of a truth, Love and Strife were aforesaid and shall be; nor ever, methinks, will boundless time be emptied of that pair. And they prevail in turn as the circle comes round, and pass away before one another, and increase in their appointed time.—Epigrams.

JOHN WILLYS WILL LET GEORGE DO IT

Overland Enthusiast to Stage Moving Picture for Friends at Kingston Opera House Next Tuesday Afternoon—Comedy Features "Mr. Schryver's Scenario."

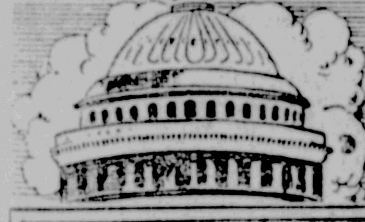

George J. Schryver is so tickled over the outlook for the Overland automobile for the coming season and so filled-up with information about the machine, that he has hired the Kingston Opera House to let people about it next Tuesday afternoon at 4:30 o'clock. At that time a motion picture extraordinary will be shown of the Knight sleeve motor and the construction of Overland cars as personally witnessed by Mr. Schryver at the big Toledo plant. George has not started out after Charley Chaplin's laurels but he appears in the picture and at that might be a formidable competitor in the race for screen honors as he's started in the Overland.

It doesn't make a bit of difference if you don't know a differential from a crankshaft, every part of the picture has a bearing on an automobile and the transmission of ideas of what makes a machine go is said to be of the clearest. There's even a touch of comedy in the film when the artist going through the plant becomes bitten by the motor bug and wheels begin to go round. The picture shows the arrival of the sales agents and the distinct shock resulting from the contact of these live wires with the main battery of the Overland plant. John Willys, over whose future the good folk of Canandaigua, N. Y., were much worried once because he insisted upon going west to grow, John has expanded in all directions since, save in the waist line. The same is true of the waste line for in all of operation of the gigantic industry there is no loss of energy anywhere.

It's something the same way with George as with John, for the former is certainly on the job here, selling 117 cars last season and on his way to another record this. In the Overland game in the Hudson Valley, it's a byword, "Let George Do It," the same as it was with the militia when the Third Brigade was called to the Mexican border.

Admission to the pictures will be by card only and these little paste-boards are bound to be in great demand Tuesday. Every detail of automobile assembling is shown and a lot of other interesting things. If anybody tires and retires from the pictures, the Overland distributor carries a full line of Goodyear and other makes and has a taxi service in addition—a most forerunners outfit. There will be some representatives from the factory to see how the Schryver scenario is staged here and the "standing room only" sign will be dusted anew for this event.

UNDER THE CAPITOL DOME.

(Senator Thomas J. Walsh.)

Washington, March 10.—Demanding an immediate change in the senate rules to limit debate, Senator Thomas J. Walsh, of Montana, is on record today as severely censuring the twelve senators who defeated the Arneson Neutrality bill.

"Traitors may find their way into congress and by filibustering hold the senate at bay while a foreign foe thundered at our gates," said Senator Walsh. "Multitudes of sagacious men believed in 1861 that the south would not fight and others that the north would never resort to arms to preserve the union. It is not inconceivable that the obstructionists, filibusters, may be actuated by traitorous sentiments. The Revolution had its Arnold. I trust I could find no sensibilities in referring to the fact that in 1861 ten or more members of this body were expelled for treason."

"A vice-president of the United States who for four years presided over the senate was indicted and tried for treason, and a senator charged with him for this capital offense escaped expulsion by one vote. The senate had already at that early day expelled one of its members for perfidious negotiations with the enemies of his country."

"We are all sworn to bear true faith and allegiance to the United States, a needless oath unless it be that some of us may conceivably require the aid of heaven to keep us true."

So Forgetful.
The Bear Thing—"I sent a post card to Tom last week and forgot to put his name and address on it. He must have thought me an awful silly when he got it."

PRESBYTERIAN MEN DINE AND PLAN

Entertained at Dinner by Women of the Church Friday Evening in the Chapel—Plans for Every Member Canvass Sunday.

The men of the Rondout Presbyterian Church were entertained at a roast beef dinner Friday evening in the chapel of the church by the women of the congregation, and at the close plans were made for the "Every Member" canvass to be undertaken Sunday to raise funds to carry on the church work. The chapel presented an attractive sight with the dining tables arranged in the form of a huge square.

The menu arranged by the women was one that appealed to every man, and was faultlessly served, the dinner closing with coffee and a thick slice of home made lemon pie. A rising vote of thanks was tendered the women for their work in preparing and serving the dinner which is an annual event and is held a few days before the "Every Member" canvass is taken up.

W. C. Kingman presided as toastmaster and introduced the first speaker of the evening, the Rev. Putnam Cady, the newly installed pastor of the First Presbyterian Church on Elmendorf street, who gave a very interesting address along the lines of the campaign planned. He was followed by the Rev. Dr. C. G. Ellis, pastor of the church, who spoke of the work of the session. Frank R. Powley spoke in behalf of the trustees and called attention to the fact that the budget was larger this year than last and about $4,500 was needed to carry on the church work.

During the serving of the dinner songs were sung. The men before sitting down to the good things prepared by the women sang America and Dr. Ellis gave the blessing. At the close of the dinner the Star Spangled Banner was sung by the men.

For several years past the church has adopted the "Every Member" canvass as the best plan to raise funds for carrying on the church work. Each member of the congregation is visited by the men of the church who are divided up into teams and assigned certain territory, and each member of the congregation is asked to sign a card agreeing to give as much a week as they feel able. Then when the canvass is finished it is easily ascertained just how much income is to be had from the pledges. This plan of financing a church has been found to work better than any plan so far tried out, and is in use by many churches throughout the country.

Presbyterian C. E. Meeting.

The leader of the Christian Endeavor meeting at the Presbyterian Church Sunday evening at 6:45 will be Miss Ruth N. Smith and you will receive as well as give help on the subject of "Spreading the Good News." If you are willing to be a live-wire in our society be sure and be present Sunday evening as our officers are revising the roll call and need to be assured of our willingness to be a helper in the new work undertaken. The pastor, Dr. Cady, is very interested in the young people and their meeting and in his behalf we invite you to come and see and join us as a most heartily welcome awaits you. We expect you to come. Those under twelve years of age are invited to join the new junior society to be under the supervision of Mrs. Cady.

The Day of Judgment.

How many judgment days does the Bible tell of? What will be the length, the character, the law, and the results of The Day of Judgment? These questions will be answered to the satisfaction of anyone who believes the Bible to be God's inspired word, when Pastor J. P. Stephenson of New York City Temple lectures on the topic, "The Great Judgment Day," Sunday at 3 p. m. at Mechanics' Hall. All desiring to learn from the word of God are cordially invited. No collection.

KINGSTON, N. Y., MARCH 10, 1917.

Bi-partisan organization of the House of Representatives is a possibility, so close is the strength of the two leading parties. It may be that good will come of it during a National crisis such as we are now facing, but the principle is bad and at variance with American institutions. Division of power means division of responsibility and this latter, under our party system, is a potential source of inefficiency and waste, as under its workings the blame for such shortcomings is easily sidestepped. Republican Leader Mann is quoted as preferring bi-partisanship in control of the House rather than a small group of filibusters, but, unlike the Senate under its old rules, the House can limit a filibuster merely through the action of the Rules Committee when sustained by a majority. Patriotism comes before partisanship, and we believe that such order will be observed by our representatives in Congress under the control of the House organization by either of the two leading parties. What benefits a bi-partisan combination could contribute to the situation are not apparent. Congress may be depended upon to uphold the President once he gets under way. The events of the past week and the country's attitude toward them have made assurance doubly sure of that.

Frenzied fulminations of food editors in the metropolitan press are the best kind of publicity for retailers anxious to raise prices without warrant. "Dairymen's League to Put up Prices" head-lined the New York Times of Friday and the article below the caption was every bit as misleading and damaging to the public interest. This alleged news was based upon the announcement of the League's schedule of prices for the six months beginning April 1st, a schedule extending pro rata to the remainder of the fiscal year the prices agreed upon by producers and distributors at the time of the settlement of the strike. It is not a new increase. It does not justify the increase of retail prices to consumers in the Greater City, the retail prices already having been adjusted to meet the higher rate paid the daymen for this year. The six months basis for price schedules has no bearing on the retail price, already raised to meet the new conditions. In the face of these facts, it is not absolutely absurd for newspaper champions of the consumers to so obviously tempt retailers to take advantage of the state of the public mind, educated by such misleading reports to expect an immediate boost in milk prices?

The more one sees of this sort of journalism, the more one feels the loss to modern journalism in the failure to develop another Gieseler or a Raymond to wage intelligent warfare for the public welfare. The more misinformation that is spread of imminent higher prices and shortages in supplies of foodstuffs the quicker individuals act for their own protection and proceed to flood the market with buying orders for larger quantities than needed. There is no question but that present methods of production are faulty, and also that methods of distribution are far worse. The consumer is confronted with a chaotic composed of producers, middlemen, transportation agencies and retailers, each group pointing the finger at the other as the one responsible. Legislators institute futile investigations and the press keeps each back in full chorus from time to time. All go round in a merry carrousel for which the public foots the bill, bewildered and confident that it is being bunked somewhere. It is unlikely that the true answer to the problem will be returned before the millennium unless science comes to the rescue and devises means to secure its facility in weather conditions and crop production.

The State requires corporations, except railroads and some other exempt industries, to pay all employees weekly and not withhold more than week's pay at any time. The same rule does not hold good with the State Government. A glittering example of just how money operates is furnished in the plight of the members of the Tenth Regiment who have been called out to the unpleasant duty of patrolling the New York City quadrant. The order has been in effect more than a month and under the law, the guardsmen are paid at the rate of $1.25 a day. Yet pay day has not yet arrived. The interruption to their work, to their home life and to normal activities is not considered. The guardsmen merely go where they are sent. At the same time, those of them with families have their responsibilities, and prompt payment of their wages by the State would be the greatest aid to their independence and well-being. Why is it that even ordinary business efficiency does not seem to be reflected in the Adjutant General's office in spite of the lessons of the mobilization last June and the strides supposed to have been made toward systematizing the business of the State departments?

We are glad to see that our boys in the High School are evincing a hearty interest in military training. It is a purely voluntary effort on their part and we trust that their activity will be sustained in this movement to the end of their school lives. Such a plan is not militarism. Indeed, one regrettable feature is the lack of that discipline which is the paramount attribute to the life of a soldier. Nevertheless, some knowledge of the manual of arms, setting-up exercises and drill will be thus obtainable and the results are bound to be most useful. The one item of an erect carriage is a great desideratum. How many students, and other young men for that matter, are to be seen today who do not know how to carry themselves? Stoop-shouldered and with slovenly gait, the bearing of many youth, Americans today is far from what it should be. If only to correct this shortcoming, these school exercises will be of utmost value. Due measure of public co-operation and enthusiasm should be given to this latest effort to instruct these young men in the rudiments of military training.

And Such Nice Things to See.

"I never cared much to be a heaven too realistically and minutely described in the pulpit," said a Bishop the other day, according to The New York American. "In fact, these pulpit details about heaven makes me think of the little girl who, tumbling in a drawer, exclaimed: 'There! Grandpa has gone to heaven without his spectacles!'"

I like to see a man stand up to his own country!"—Philadelphia Star.

The Man Higher Up.

"Here, you!" cried the turn-coat man to the porter on the suburban station. "Don't you think that truck is rather dangerous in that position?" "Eh?" said the newly promoted porter. "Think it's rather dangerous, no?" "Very good at you to pay attention to such things. I suppose you're going to tell me where to put it? Well, just cast your eye around. What about the booking office? Wouldn't that look better on the line?" And the signal box? Shall we shift it into the main street? And how about the station-master's house? Shall we move it on to the upper platform? Any opinion you'd like to express shall receive attention." "Ah!" said the promoted porter to the booking clerk. "D'you see how I used that interfering old porter? Good, wasn't it?" "Well, I dunno about that," said the booking clerk. "He happens to be a traffic superintendent."—Pittsburgh Chronicle.

UPTOWN HOME HAS EDUCATED RABBIT

The Famous Peter Himself Has Nothing on Adventures of Bunny Who Shakes Furnaces, Beats Fire and Abductors in Winter of His Discontent.

"The rabbit is back—shaking the furnace again," was the enigmatic remark of an active member of the Nature-Fakers' Club to two associates this morning. Both manifested extreme interest although the utterance was a puzzle to others within hearing. Finally the story came out.

A man uptown purchased a rabbit last fall for the amusement of his daughter, a promising miss of four years. During her absence from town the rabbit was billeted upon a neighbor. Upon the daughter's return to the ancestral halls (clapboard and brick construction with all improvements), a bold burglary was committed upon the hut at the neighbor's house and the pet rabbit with its mate, the property of the little girl in the neighbor's household, were forcibly removed. No trace nor track of the burglars could be found and lamentations from the juvenile owners were loud and prolonged.

To go back to an earlier chapter, the first mentioned rabbit had developed peculiar traits in the first wintered house. It occupied a berth in the cellar, safe from man, dog, Zepplines and fellows. While there housed, the natural curiosity of the rabbit was exhibited in striking manner. Like Eric Commissionaire, Litchak snakes, this quadruped was of an investigating turn of mind and the furnace became an object of its attentions.

Twice this adventurous member of the family made famous by Peter and Mr. McGregg because engaged in the bottom of the furnace by running into the lower door left open by Peteranillas leaving the draft. He narrowly escaped cremation both times and earned the name of Shadrach upon his return, albeit a trifle injured but yet unscathed.

To resume—the banditti left no trace and the rabbit was unsighted and unseen until Thursday night a glimpse from an upper window to ward midnight revealed Bunny holding high jinks in the moonlight on the snow under the old apple tree. Father forthwith sallied out but Shadrach had evidently forgotten the familiar sight of the bathrobe and refused to be coaxed. Desperate, the natural cunning of man in his contact with furry creatures of the wild asserted itself. He seized the waste-paper basket from the hearth and inverting it, put a curtain beneath a stick under the edge of the tilted basket and attached string to the stick. The stage was set.

Curiosity, which is once said to have killed a cat, was Mrs. Rabbit's undoing. Lucie Remus to the contrary notwithstanding, that rabbit was not bad to investigate. He found the carrot, the string was jerked, the basket fell and Bun was again a captive.

Next morning joy succeeded gloom as a mourning household was made happy again and the proprietor of the Rabbitship announces that she is to keep him "forever and forever." The cellar again echoes with the shaking of the furnace as the family pet mounds about its mysterious exterior, absorbing the calories of sundry carrots in the silent intervals between shakes.

EDDYVILLE

Eddyville March 10.—Eugene Wayne, who is employed at Esopus spent Sunday at his home here. Mrs. Alice Schieghtner spent Sunday with her mother in Port Jervis.

Mr. Anderson is seriously ill at this writing. E. J. Gungar is spending some time in Brooklyn.

Henry Scott, who has been employed in Brooklyn, has returned home.

Miss Anna Ruess, who has been ill, is improving under the care of Dr. Ross.

Thomas Wayne spent Sunday with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. Wayne. Mrs. Fred Soules has returned home from Waterbury, Conn.

Joseph Feldman has moved his family to Wilbur. The community is sorry to lose such a good neighbor.

Mrs. Richard Moore spent Thursday with friends in Kingston. John Kennedy has purchased a horse.

NEW YORK DOESN'T WANT TO PAY BILL

Friction Between City and State Said to be Holding Up Pay of Militiamen Now Guarding Ashokan Aqueduct.

Private advices received in New Paltz indicates there has come friction between the state of New York and the city of New York over the pay of the guardsmen now doing duty on the aqueduct, says the Newburgh News, and in view of the dispute the guardsmen who have not yet received any pay are likely to be held up for an indefinite period. According to the information received in New Paltz, the city of New York, at whose request the guardsmen were called out, is now unwilling to pay the bills, and as a consequence the money is being held up.

When the payrolls were signed, the men were given to understand their money would be forthcoming a few days after the first of the month. It is now the tenth of the month and the money has not been received nor is likely to be sent soon.

Under a law just passed, where the state authorities are called upon to provide troops the cost must be met by the county desiring assistance. The city of New York, it is understood, is now objecting to this payment and its officials assert that the cost should be a state charge. The state authorities rely on the law that it is a county charge.

In connection with the foregoing, it was said at the armory today that members of Company M, ordered out on February 8, had not yet received any pay although it was said that cutting of red tape would provide for prompt appearance on the part of the paymaster.

MISS FLORA WHITNEY
SOCIETY GIRL SAVES HERSELF
IN TREACHEROUS UNDERCURRENT.

Palm Beach, Fla., March 10.—Only the fact that she is an expert swimmer saved the life of Miss Flora Whitney, debutante daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney, of New York, when she was caught in an undercurrent some distance from shore. Miss Whitney swam beyond the first row of breakers and dived into the big waves. She disappeared and did not rise to the surface for such a time that several persons on the beach shouted and others swam rapidly to the spot where she was last seen. Suddenly she reappeared thirty yards away and was seen to be struggling in the grasp of an undercurrent, only to disappear again. When she next came to the surface Miss Whitney was nearly exhausted, but managed by exerting all of her strength to make her way to shore unaided.

It Couldn't Be Done.
"There is some money, my love," said the husband. "I don't want any," replied the wife. "Come now, darling, take this $10 note and go out shopping." "Thank you, dear, but I really don't care to. I would rather stay at home and see to the household." Thus the husband drove and found, as the reader has already suspected, that he had been drumming.

Thought He Was Fleeing.
Margaret was not accustomed to the saying of grace. One night she went for supper with the next-door neighbors. "Daddy," said she the next morning, "what was that Mr. Smith read off the platter?"—New York Evening Post.

MATTERS BEFORE THE SURROGATE

In the surrogate's court Surrogate Gill has issued letters of administration on the estate of Frank Y. Sahler of the town of Marbletown to his widow, Esther J. Sahler. The value of the real estate is $5,000 and the personal property amounts to $600. Virginia Van Wagoner appeared for the administratrix.

Letters of administration on the estate of Robert M. Weston of this city were issued to his father, William Weston. The value of the estate is $400 personal property. Frederick Stephan, Jr., appeared for the administrator.

ENFORCE EXISTING LAW.

Much of Time Lost at Crossing Could be Saved.

Editor of The Freeman:

The mistake of our city authorities in allowing the West Shore railway line to enter the city at its present grade in 1882 still seems irreparable. But in extension of their action it should be said that the people of Kingston at that time were so anxious to get this great trunk line here at all under any conditions that they gave up their objections to the grade. Nobody thought of looking ahead into the coming years when the normal growth and progress of the city might render this Broadway crossing one of the most important in the country. It was a glad day indeed when the first train from New York City arrived here. Had anyone proposed the depression of the tracks under Broadway then the condition of his mind would have been questioned.

Now, 35 years later, the whole matter presents a very different aspect. We are confronted with a very serious problem at this crossing where the traffic has become so great and important. Engineers and others have submitted various plans for the elimination of the street traffic from the railway grade. But thus far it will be conceded, I think, that none of these propositions would prove practicable or even desirable for the best interests of the adjoining property owners of the city at large. Even the depression of the tracks below the street, if it were possible to secure it, would not only be prohibitive in cost but also exceedingly detrimental to the heavy and important property interests there and a permanent disfigurement to that part of the city as well. All the other plans seem to contain many objectionable features, aside from the great cost itself. It is therefore apparent that any of the remedies proposed would prove more objectionable than the evils they seek to remove.

In view of all this then why not drop this whole matter at once without any further expense or investigation and leave the crossing as it is in doing this, however, it would seem that the existing law on the subject and such other ordinances as might be adopted. No train should be allowed to stop on this crossing at any time longer than the legal limit of five minutes, unless it be paid at the street to permit traffic to proceed. Should the conductor refuse to comply with this regulation the train crew should be promptly arrested. It is said that the removal of the train dispatcher's office further up the track would greatly facilitate this whole matter and leave little occasion to stop these long freight trains on this crossing at all. In order to secure regulations there it would seem that a city policeman should be permanently stationed at this point during the busy hours of street traffic, with full power to enforce the law.

H. HENDRICKS.

SHYNDAKEN.

Shyndaken, March 9.—Miss Orpha Krom is still quite ill, not much change for the better.

Miss Amy Rowe is very sick. Dr. Gross is attending her.

The Christian Endeavorers of this place held their regular monthly business meeting at the residence of Burr Knight on Wednesday evening, March 7. After the regular routine of business was over, refreshments, consisting of ice cream and cake, were served and an excellent and enjoyable time was had.

The Chess Club of this place went to Kingston on Wednesday evening to play the Kingston Club, of which Sam Bernstein is president. At this writing we are not able to give the result of the game.

Mrs. L. B. Olmstead spent the week end with her parents in Lexington.

We are grieved to learn of the sad experience which one of our neighbors and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Walsh, have passed through. Mr. Walsh is the foreman of the Fulton Furniture Company here. The other day he received a telephone message to come to his old home town in Vermont, his mother was just taken from a stroke of paralysis. He went at once and while there his mother died and he sent for Mrs. Walsh. The funeral services were held this morning. We hear that the home of Mr. Walsh's father and mother burned last night. Mr. and Mrs. Walsh barely escaped with their lives, but the father was lost in the burning building. Mr. and Mrs. Walsh have the sympathy of a host of friends hereabouts.

Prayer service in the M. E. Church next Sunday at 11 o'clock. Sunday school at 10 o'clock. Christian Endeavor services in the evening at 7:30.

State Superintendent H. E. Bell, of the Kingston District, New York Conference, presided at the fourth quarterly conference in the Indian Church on Sunday. A very interesting and profitable sermon was delivered.

Ed Miller is tearing down the old building formerly occupied by Thomas Kilien and later by C. Johnson and will erect a bungalow in its place.

Expert Advice For the Automobile Owner

Queries and Replies Covering Matters of Importance to the Man Who Runs a Car

When I throttle down the motor of my car for two or three minutes and then open the throttle the motor seems to choke and sometimes will stop altogether. Can you tell me the trouble?

Your trouble is in the carburetor.

We suggest your trying a new auxiliary air valve spring. Also inspect the float and float valve and note if they work freely and properly.

What is the proper way to align the wheels of an automobile?

The proper method to align the wheels of an automobile is as follows:

At the same distance above the ground as the center of the hub, the measurement is taken across the width of the spread of the two front wheels from the inner side of the rims of each.

When this measurement has been carefully checked the wheels are rotated to different positions and measurements taken at the same height. They should always be the same. When the wheels have been found to be true, as far as this measurement is concerned, similar measurements are made at the rear of the wheel. The distance across the wheels at the rear will be slightly larger than in front on account of the toe-in generally allowed. This amounts to one-fourth inch as a rule.

What valve timing should one use on a two cylinder opposed motor with a bore of four and one-half inches?

Since the valve timing which will give ideal results for any given motor is a variable quantity and depends largely upon such details as manifold design, the only thing which can be done is to give you an approximate timing from which you can vary in one direction or the other until you attain the best results.

If the cams are already made and in the motor, you can only place them so that the valve openings will correspond with those given and allow the timing to take care of itself. A fairly average timing which should give good results is as follows: Intake valve opens ten degrees after upper dead center, and closes thirty-five degrees past lower dead center. The exhaust valve opens forty degrees before lower dead center and closes five degrees past upper dead center.

One of the electric headlights on my car throws a smaller radius of light than the other, the lamps being of the same candle power, and one seems as bright as the other. Why the difference?

It is probable that one of your lamps is out of focus. If you can remove your lamp you will note that the bulb can be moved forward and backward in relation to the reflector. This adjustment should be made until the ray of light thrown out by the lamp is equal to the others. In order to first ascertain, however, that it is the focal adjustment which is incorrect it would be a good idea to take the bulbs out of the lamps and interchange them. Then if the same light gives the greatest illumination and the reflectors are both clean it will certainly be a matter of adjusting the focus.

What is meant by spark advance and spark retard? Does advancing the spark mean to increase its volume?

Advancing and retarding does not affect the volume of the spark, but rather the time it takes place in the cylinder in relation to the piston position. If the spark occurs when the piston is past dead center it is then termed retarded. If before dead center then it is advanced.

When cranking a motor very slowly the spark must be retarded, otherwise an explosion may take place in the cylinder before the piston has reached top center and reverse. This reversing is termed a kick and will often break the arm. The amount of advance to give the spark when driving depends upon the speed of the motor. If the motor is pulling hard and turning over slowly (i.e., the spark cannot be so far advanced). If turning freely and fast then the full advance is advisable.

I have a 1910 car, which has magnets only for the ignition system. I find it difficult to start the motor. Last year I had no trouble. Will you please explain the cause of this?

When starting on magnets the spark lever should be advanced. If this was done and your engine does not start easily then clean and readjust the platinum points on the circuit breaker. Since you have a 1910 car and have doubtless used it considerably, it would advise your having the magnets remagnetized.

I had the motor in my car overhauled recently, and since that time it runs well at a slow rate of speed, but when I go faster than twenty miles an hour it misses. I have four coils with buzzers on magnets. What do you think is wrong?

If you are sure that the carburetor is adjusted properly for high speed we would suggest that you clean out the filter so that the roller will make a clean contact with the segments or contact pieces. If they are rather dirty the roller on the end of the timer shaft would not make a good electrical connection with them when going very fast.

To protect vehicles from being run into by automobiles at night an inventor has patented a device that catches rays from kakis and deflects them through a pane of red glass.

For Your Desk.

A sheet of corrugated paper is a handy thing for your desk to hold wet pens or brushes. The paper absorbs the liquid and the corrugations hold the pens or brushes in handy position.

I am overhauling my car, which has been driven about 20,000 miles and is in very good condition, except that it does not seem to have the power which it had a few months ago. In cranking the motor I notice that the compression is not as strong. I am under the impression that I should install new piston rings. However, I do not wish to do this unless it is absolutely necessary. The rings seem to be in first class condition. Some advice me one way, others another. What is your opinion?

It is customary in overhauling a motor which has been run for any great length of time to renew the piston rings. These rings act under spring tension and are subject to considerable wear. They are not expensive and if properly fitted will considerably increase the power of the motor. With a loss of compression you can hardly expect to obtain the full benefit from your motor. The old rings, no doubt, are the cause of this loss of power, and accordingly should be replaced.

It has been suggested that instead of using alcohol or other anti-freezing solutions in the radiator that I drain the water entirely out and put in kerosene. Would this provide effective cooling on moderately warm winter days, and would any other harm be done than the action on the rubber hose?

This is not advised. Of course it would not freeze and would cool the motor, although pure kerosene is much more volatile than water, and it would evaporate rapidly with an accompanying evil smell. Furthermore, a leaky hose line is no place for such a readily ignited fluid as kerosene. In any event kerosene would soon set the rubber packing because of its deleterious action.

Will you please give me all the information you can on soldering aluminum?

Aluminum is soldered by the use of a blow torch. A solder which may be used without flux is composed of seventy-five and one-hundredths parts of tin, eighteen parts of zinc and two and one-hundredths parts of aluminum. The parts should be slightly heated before applying. The solder should be forced in place by means of a stiff metal brush. Another solder which requires a flux, however, is made up of 80 per cent tin and 20 per cent zinc, stearic acid being used as a flux.

The objection to soldering aluminum is that the joint is not very strong.

Is there anything that may be used to brighten up the glass or mica used for windows in curtains of motorcars? Mine are getting yellow and are somewhat scratched.

Use a solution of vinegar and water. Be sure, however, that the solution does not get on to the curtain material other than the mica. Of course this will not take the scratches out of the mica, but it will restore it to its original color.

How does one fit babbit bearings on crank shaft and connecting rods, either when putting in new ones or when taking up slack in old ones?

If only slightly worn, bearings may be adjusted by removing shims or by filing the bearing caps. If the bearings are scored or worn out of round or if new bearings are put in, the surfaces must be scraped.

If the bearing surfaces are in good condition and not worn out of shape a slight adjustment should be sufficient to make them tight. There are usually several shims under the bearing cap, and by removing these one by one the looseness will disappear. Remove only enough shims to make the bearing a snug but not a tight fit. When shims are not used the lost motion may be removed by placing the bearing cap in a vise and filing down the surface. In case too much material is removed a copper or paper shim or shims should be inserted to make the cap fit. In filing, the flat surface of the bearing cap should be preserved. The file not only being held flat against the surface, but the movement of the tool being carefully executed.

If the bearing is scored, new or worn out of round it will need scraping. This should be done by an experienced man. Scraping rod bearings may be scraped without tearing down the motor, but if the main bearings require scraping the motor must be disassembled and the crank case placed upside down with the crank shaft and flywheel still in position. The main bearing caps are removed, and the crank shaft bearing surfaces are painted with a solution of prussian blue. After rotating the crank shaft a few times, and removing it the high spots of the bearings will be coated with the blue.

These spots are carefully removed with a special scraping tool, care being taken not to cut too deep. Then the crank shaft is replated and the operation repeated until the few large high spots have given place to more evenly distributed small ones, showing that the bearing makes contact at practically every point.

How often should a storage battery be cleaned and refilled with liquid?

A storage battery should be tested and filled with pure water without fail every week in summer and every two weeks in winter.

ANNOUNCEMENT

The housewife sifts her flour before she mixes it into dough; the builder sifts the sand before he makes his mortar; we sift every product we make or sell before it is offered to those who buy here.

Our constant aim is to give patrons THE BEST—to see that things bought of us are rightly made and rightly priced.

With this purpose in mind, we have accepted the local agency for the famous

"MIRROR" CANDIES

Hard Candies, Package Chocolates, Bon-Bons

and in fact all the different kinds that the most critical lovers of good candy demand.

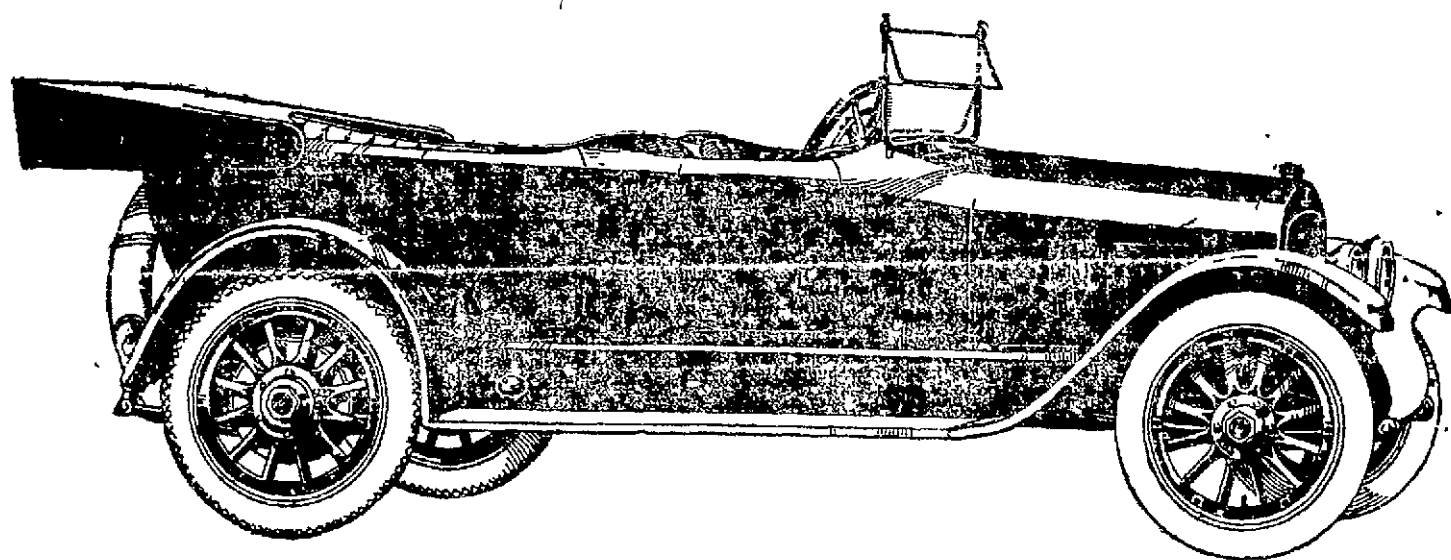

"Mirror" Candies are made in New York, and have won fame all over America. They are of guaranteed purity, and are of delicious, dainty flavor unequalled by any other brand of candy made or sold anywhere in this country.

Those Kingstonians who have been obliged to send to New York for "Mirror" Candies will be pleased to learn that we have the "Mirror" agency and that those candies are now on sale at our store at moderate prices.

$100 More April First

Another $100 will be added to the price of Cole Eight Touring Cars and Roadsters April first.

The sales of these two models have increased so greatly in spite of a similar advance in price which became effective January first that we are already forced to put into their production materials which we did not think we would be called upon to use until July first.

And these new materials we have been obliged to buy at the present higher prices.

Consequently, we are forced to increase the prices of our Touring Cars and Roadsters ninety days ahead of the date originally set.

Our contemplated production of 10,000 Cole Eights for 1917 will not be disturbed, however.

Cars purchased prior to April first may be had at the present price of $1695.

SOCIAL WELFARE OF SITTING HEN

Upon Her Care Depends the Number and Condition of Chicks Hatched
—How to Test Eggs for Fertility.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, D. C., March 10.—The sitting hen, which is used most generally for incubation purposes on the farm, should receive a certain amount of care and attention during the process of hatching eggs. To a great extent the care given a sitting hen plays an important part on the number and condition of the chicks when hatched. With this end in view, the poultry specialists of the U. S. Department of Agriculture make the following suggestions:

If several hens are sitting in the same room, see that they are kept on the nests, allowing them to come off only once a day to receive feed and water, the feed to consist of corn, wheat or both. If there are any that do not desire to come off themselves, they should be taken off. Hens usually return to their nests before there is any danger of the eggs chilling, but if they do not go back in half an hour in ordinary weather, they should be put on the nest. Where a large number of sitters are kept in one room it is advisable to let them off in groups of four or five at a time. The eggs and nests should be examined and cleaned, removing all broken eggs and washing those that are soiled; in the latter case the soiled nesting material should be removed and clean straw added. Nests containing broken eggs that the hen is allowed to sit on soon become infested with mites and lice, which cause the hens to become uneasy and leave the nest, often causing the loss of valuable sittings of eggs. In mite-infested nests, the hen, if fastened in, will often be found standing over rather than sitting on the eggs. Many eggs that are laid in the late winter and early spring are infertile. For this reason it is advisable to set several hens at the same time. After the eggs have been under the hens from 5 to 7 days, the time depending somewhat on the color and thickness of the shells—white shelled eggs being easier to test than those having brown shells—they should be tested. The infertile eggs and dead germs removed, and the fertile eggs put back under the hen. In this way it is often possible to put all the eggs that several hens originally started to sit on under fewer hens and reset the others. For example, 30 eggs are set under 3 hens at the same time, 10 under each. At the end of 7 days we find on testing the eggs from all the hens that 10 are infertile, which leaves us 20 eggs to reset, which we do by putting them under 2 hens, and have the remaining hens sit over again after she has sat only 7 days. In this way considerable time can be saved in one's hatching operations.

Testing Eggs for Fertility.

An egg, whether impregnated or not, has a small growth on its surface of the yolk known as the "germinal spot." As soon as a fertile egg is placed under a hen, or in an incubator, development begins. All eggs should be tested at least twice during the period of incubation, preferably on the seventh and fourteenth days, and the infertile eggs and dead germs removed. White eggs can be tested on the fourth or fifth day, while the development in eggs having brown shells often can not be seen by the use of an ordinary egg tester until the seventh day. Dead germs soon decay and give off a bad odor if allowed to remain under the hen. Infertile eggs make good feed for young chickens, and are often used in the home for culinary purposes. Most incubator companies furnish testing chimneys with their machines which will fit ordinary lamps. Electric or gas lamps may be used in a box with a hole slightly smaller than egg cut in the side of the box and at the same level as the light. They may also be tested by sunlight, or daylight, using a shutter or cutlaid with a small hole in it for the light to shine through.

A good home made egg tester, or candler, can be made with a large shoe box or any box that is large enough to go over a lamp by removing the end and cutting a hole a little larger than the size of a quarter in the bottom of the box, so that when it is set over a kerosene lamp the hole in the bottom will be opposite the blaze. A hole the size of a silver dollar should be cut in the top of the box to allow the heat to escape.

The eggs are tested with the large end up, so that the size of the air cell may be seen as well as the condition of the embryo. The testing should take place in a dark room. The infertile egg when held before the small hole with the lamp lighted inside the box will look perfectly clear, the same as a fresh one, while a fertile egg will show a small dark spot, known as the embryo, with a mass of little blood veins extending in all directions. If the embryo is living, if dead, and the egg has been incubated for at least 48 hours, the blood settles away from the embryo toward the edges of the yolk, forming in some cases an irregular circle of blood, known as a blood ring. Eggs vary in this respect, some showing only a streak of blood. All infertile eggs should be removed at the first test. The eggs containing strong, living embryos are dark and well filled up on the fourteenth day, and show a clear, sharp, distinct line of demarcation between the air cell and the growing embryo, while dead germs show only partial development, and lack this clear, distinct outline.

MILTON.

Milton, March 10.—At a meeting of the board of education held on Tuesday evening, Principal Dwight M. Warren and Miss Mary McManus were engaged to teach the coming school year.

Several parents and friends of the pupils visited the school on Tuesday afternoon, but the teachers would have welcomed many more. The pupils were found doing good work with the prospect of accomplishing much success at the close of the year. After performing a drill in physical training and marching in quite a military manner, marking the time exceedingly well, the school was dismissed and Principal Warren explained important matters concerning the school to the edification of the parents. The teachers would like to have parents and interested friends of the school (and who should not be interested?) to visit the rooms at any time.

Invitations are issued in honor of the 30th anniversary of the marriage of Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Clarke.

C. E. Northrip was in Poughkeepsie on Wednesday.

Fred Boss and sister, Miss Lottie Boss, have returned to their home in New York city after spending several weeks with Mr. and Mrs. F. C. Wood.

Walter R. Clarke and sister, Miss Lulu Clarke, returned from the south last week.

Messrs. L. Mackey and J. R. Wood report having visited Mr. and Mrs. P. V. L. Purdy at St. Cloud, Fla.

The sunny south is a very delightful place to sojourn in during the winter, but Mr. and Mrs. Purdy have made it their home all the year 'round, and are now longing to return to their native soil. Of course our people would miss very much the green lawns, which owing to the sandy soil is not seen.

On Friday, the 2nd inst., death claimed Miss Amanda Watson, aged 75 years. Miss Watson came here with her father and mother many years ago. Since their death, some 30 or more years ago, she lived alone, but for the past year or so, owing to failing health, she looked up house-keeping and has lived with Mr. and Mrs. P. A. Lyons, who have faithfully cared for her. The funeral was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Lyons on Tuesday morning, the Rev. Mr. Davis, rector of the Episcopal church, officiating. Interment in Cedar Hill cemetery, under the direction of Undertaker E. V. Discoe.

There will be an entertainment in the M. E. Church on Friday evening, March 16, at 8 o'clock, under the auspices of Group One of the Ladies' Aid Society and the Epworth League. There will be recitations and music, both vocal and instrumental, by local and out of town talent. Admission, adults 25 cents; children 15 cents.

Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Conklin, Jr., entertained the following friends on Tuesday last: Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Jenkins, Mr. and Mrs. Charles R. Taber, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Sears, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Fred Velle, Mr. and Mrs. William R. Lyons, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Woolsey, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Fred Woolsey, Mr. and Mrs. William Rhoades, Mr. and Mrs. R. M. Rouse, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Sears, the Messrs. Florence Woolsey, Marion Patten, Fannie Ritters, Caroline Sears and E. M. Wood.

Mrs. Lena R. Smith, Mrs. Ellen Anderson, Mrs. Scott Anderson and Miss Gladys Townsend were in Newburgh on Thursday last and saw Marie Doro in the film production, "Oliver Twist," at Taylor Opera House.

Ernest Bell has resigned his position with the Electric Company, Harrison, N. J., and will go into fruit growing with his father, A. E. Bell, who recently purchased the McCabe farm.

The Woman's Home Missionary Society met with Mrs. William H. Davidson on Wednesday afternoon.

Prayer meeting and teachers' training class at the parsonage on Thursday evening. Happy Hour Club on Friday evening at the parsonage at 7 o'clock.

The regular monthly business meeting of the Epworth League was held at the home of Isaac Conklin, Sr. After the business meeting a social hour was enjoyed with games and music and refreshments served. Owing to the very stormy weather on Monday only three Milton women attended the meeting at Marlborough in the interest of Red Cross work, the Misses de Leon and Clarke.

The Enlist family are expecting to move into the Nelson Purdy property north of the village.

Ambrose Enlist has resigned his position at the telephone central and is now working on the P. F. Wanner farm.

Maurice Dayton, who lost valuable tools in the well on the Nicklin place near Marlborough, succeeded in finding them this week. This has been an expensive job for Mr. Dayton, as it has cost him $150 for fishing tools and hiring a man, with so much lost time, having had the accident about Christmas time.

Mrs. Perry Bunker is visiting her sister and brother, Mrs. Cassels and Leland Jensen, in Pittsfield, Mass.

Mrs. Edward Thiells is visiting Mrs. Warren in Marlborough.

Mrs. William Stinson has gone to a New York hospital again for treatment.

We were glad to hear that there were over thirty women gathered together on Monday afternoon in the Marlborough school building for the purpose of organizing under the Red Cross workers of Ulster county.

Look for the Best.

You will find it less easy to uproot faults than to choke them by galling virtues. Do not think of your faults; still less of others' faults; in every person who comes near you look for what is good and strong; honor that; rejoice in it; and your faults will drop off, like dead leaves, when their time comes.—Ruskin.

SENIORS WIN FROM JUNIORS 28 TO 21

Basketball Tussle Between Classes Makes Lot of Excitement in High School Gym—Game to be Played on Arbor Day.

Whenever the students at the high school get a spanking for a blood-curdling hair-raising basketball spectacle as a relaxation from their colorless routine in the classroom they can rely on the Seniors and Juniors to produce the goods. Friday afternoon is a fine time for a breaking house of animal spirits and yesterday afternoon both factions gave such a free rein that the game was a shaver. The Seniors won, 28-21, and thereby snatched the inter-class championship, unless the sophomores will be able to down them, as they won the previous game from the '18 class.

Evidently there had been little consultation of the rules of the game and Prof. Schumaker was well nigh a nervous wreck after he had called a total of 27 fouls on the Seniors and 28 on the Juniors. Even these little delays didn't retard the battle as both quartets fought valiantly every minute.

At half time the score was 11-10 with the Seniors in the lead. The lineup was as follows:

Seniors	PH	TP	PP	TP
Dwyer, Jr.	5	5	15	15
Jacobson, Jr.	1	1	3	3
Reynolds, Jr.	2	0	0	0
Mathews, Jr.	0	1	1	1
Stella, Jr.	0	0	0	0
Kelder, Jr.	1	0	2	2

Mondes-Brannettes Again.

The Blondes will stage their "come back" at the Brunettes Tuesday afternoon. The dark ones won the last encounter. As the variety girls are allowed to take part in these contests they are well played.

Arbor Day Game Planned.

Manager Armat of the baseball team is negotiating with the Christian Brothers' Academy of Albany for a game here on Arbor Day. About the capitol they have a good "reep" and it is hoped that they will accept.

Cassell Must Be Good.

Oscar Cassell of Glisco was brought before Judge Chidester of Saugerties on Friday on complaint of his wife who alleged that Oscar did not provide means of support. Officer Ricketson of the Saugerties police department made the arrest on Thursday afternoon. Cassell pleaded guilty to the charge when arraigned and was sentenced to the Albany Pen for 180 days but sentence was suspended during good behavior. Judge Chidester warned Cassell to observe the law in the future and any violation would land him in the penitentiary. Oscar has been before the saugerties justice before.

Quite Unprofitable.

We suppose there's nothing less profitable than indulging in vain regrets, but still we often wonder in our melancholy how much we'd be worth now if we had never spilled any gasoline on the garage floor, our clothing, and our person.—Ohio State Journal.

Daily Thought.

For a truth, Love and Strife were aforetime and shall be; nor ever, methinks, will boundless time be emptied of that pair. And they prevail in time as the circle comes round, and pass away before one another, and increase to their appointed time.—Emerson.

Overland Enthusiast to Stage Moving Picture for Friends at Kingston Opera House Next Tuesday.

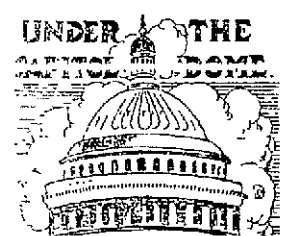

Attention—Comedy Features "Mr. Schryver's Scenario." George J. Schryver is so tickled over the outlook for the Overland automobile for the coming season and so tickled-up—with information about the machine, that he has hired the Kingston Opera House to tell people about it next Tuesday afternoon at 4:30 o'clock. At that time a motion picture extraordinary will be shown of the Knight sleeve motor and the construction of Overland cars as personally witnessed by Mr. Schryver at the big Toledo plant. George has not started out after Charlie Chaplin's laurels but he appears in the picture and at that might be a formidable competitor in the race for screen honors as he's started in the Overland.

It doesn't make a bit of difference if you don't know a differential from a crankshaft, every part of the picture has a bearing on an automobile and the transmission of ideas of what makes a machine go is said to be of the clearest. There's even a touch of comedy in the film when the artist going through the plant becomes bitten by the motor bug and wheels begin to go round. The picture shows the arrival of the sales agents and the distinct shock resulting from the racket of these live wires with the main battery of the Overland plant. John Willys, over whose future the good folk of "Canaanland" N. Y. were much worried once because he insisted upon going west to grow. John has ex-pounded in all directions since, save in the waist line. The same is true of the waste line for in all of operation of the gigantic industry there is no loss of energy anywhere.

It's something the same way with George as with John, for the former is certainly on the job here, selling 117 cars last season and on his way to another record this.

In the Overland game in the Hudson Valley, it's a byword "Let George Do It." The same was with the militia when the Third Brigade was called to the Mexican border.

Admission to the pictures will be by card only and these little pasted-on cards are bound to be in great demand Tuesday. Every detail of automobile assembling is shown and a lot of other interesting things if anybody tries and retires from the pictures. The Overland distributor carries a full line of Goodyear and other makes and has a taxi service in addition—a most forehanded outfit. There will be some representatives from the factory to see how the Schryver scenario is staged here and the "standing room only" sign will be dusted away for this event.

(Senator Thomas J. Walsh.)

Washington, March 10.—Demanding an immediate change in the senate rules to limit debate, Senator Thomas J. Walsh of Montana, is on record today as severely censuring the twelve senators who defeated the Armed Neutrality bill. "Traitors," said he, "may and they will go into congress and by hibernating hold the senate at bay while a foreign foe thunders at our gates," said Senator Walsh.

"Multitudes of sagacious men believed in 1861 that the south would not fight and others that the north would never resort to arms to preserve the union. It is not uncommon that the obstructionists, filibusters, may be actuated by traitorous sentiments. 'The Revolution had its Arnold. I trust I of our sensibilities in referring to the fact that in 1861 ten or more members of this body were expelled for treason."

"A vice-president of the United States who for four years presided over the senate was indicted and tried for treason, and a senator charged with him for this capital offense escaped expulsion by one vote. The senate had already at that early day expelled one of its members for perfidious negotiations with the enemies of his country."

"We are all sworn to bear true faith and allegiance to the United States, a needless oath unless it be that some of us may conceivably require the aid of heaven to keep true."

So Forgetful.

The Dear Thing—I sent a post card to Tom last week and forgot to put his name and address on it. He must have thought me an awful silly when he got it.

PRESBYTERIAN MEN DINE AND PLAN

Entertained at Dinner by Women of the Church Friday Evening in the Chapel—Plans for Every Member Canvassed Sunday.

The men of the Roundout Presbyterian Church were entertained at a roast beef dinner Friday evening in the chapel of the church by the women of the congregation, and at the close plans were made for the "Every Member" canvass to be undertaken Sunday to raise funds to carry on the church work. The chapel presented an attractive sight with the dining tables arranged in the form of a huge square.

The menu arranged by the women was one that appealed to every man, and was faultlessly served, the dinner closing with coffee and a thick slice of home made lemon pie. A rising vote of thanks was tendered the women for their work in preparing and serving the dinner which is an annual event and is held a few days before the "Every Member" canvass is taken up.

W. C. Kingman presided as toastmaster and introduced the first speaker of the evening, the Rev. F. H. Cady, the newly installed pastor of the First Presbyterian Church on Elmendorf street, who gave a very interesting address along the lines of the campaign planned. He was followed by the Rev. Dr. C. G. Ellis, pastor of the church, who spoke of the work of the session. Frank R. Powell spoke in behalf of the trustees and called attention to the fact that the budget was larger this year than last and about $4,500 was needed to carry on the church work.

During the serving of the dinner songs were sung. The men before sitting down to the good things prepared by the women sang America and Dr. Ellis gave the blessing. At the close of the dinner the Star Spangled Banner was sung by the men.

For several years past the church has adopted the "Every Member" canvass as the best plan to raise funds for carrying on the church work. Each member of the congregation is visited by the men of the church who are divided up into teams and assigned certain territory, and each member of the congregation is asked to sign a card agreeing to give as much as a week as they feel able. Then when the canvass is finished it is easily ascertained just how much income is to be and from the pledges. This plan of financing a church has been found to work better than any plan so far tried out, and is in use by many churches throughout the country.
